CITY MAY CONTEST GARBAGE INJUNCTION

Major Issues Loom For Lawmakers

Water Extension For Lowerytown Up For Vote

Lawmakers May Also Discuss Garbage, Act On Gas Boost

City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins said today he hoped to be able to file a motion in behalf of George Biding and the city of Circleville to dissolve a temporary injunction granted yesterday restraining enforcement of the city's new garbage ordinance.

Robbins said he would not wait until a scheduled hearing on April 29 but would enter the motion "soon" if the press of his other official duties permits.

The injunction, obtained in Common Pleas Court Saturday by a group of nine independent garbage haulers, was served upon Biding and city officials yesterday, the day the ordinance was supposed to go into effect.

Biding, who under the law would have exclusive hauling rights in Circleville, has kept his trucks in operation to service residents who have already signed up with him for garbage collection.

However, no attempt has been made to enforce the ordinance.

WHILE THE injunction is in effect, the city dump will remain open and the independent haulers will continue their regular collections.

The petition of the independent haulers upon which the injunction was granted alleges in part that the contract which the city made with Biding does not conform to the original bid made by Biding.

The haulers also charged that the ordinance, by allowing Biding to make contracts with individual householders for garbage collection, delegates legislative power which can only be legally exercised by the city council.

Trading Stamp Hussles Faces Federal Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission may crack down this month on several of the biggest trading stamp companies.

Complaints of law violations are awaiting action by the five-man commission which polices business practices.

They would mean new headaches to a booming $600 million business already fighting restrictive legislation in several states—with ardent help from housewives.

The FTC investigation is not aimed at the basic legality of savings stamps.

The pending complaints are understood to be directed at specific practices of some of the estimated 400 companies which sell stamps to storekeepers and, after housewives have pasted them in little books, provide merchandise "premiums" in exchange.

McCarthy Loses To Zwicker Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ralph W. Zwicker is wearing the two stars of an Army major general—symbols of a Senate-approved promotion which was bitterly fought by an old foe, Joe McCarthy.

Shortly after the Senate voted 70-2 Monday to advance Zwicker from brigadier general, Secretary of the Army Brucker pinned the new insignia on Zwicker's uniform. The general will take command of the 24th Infantry Division in Korea.

Sen. Malone (R-Nev) and McCarthy were the only senators voting against the promotion.

McCarthy once said Zwicker was unfit to wear the uniform of a general. Later, the Senate voted condemnation of McCarthy's actions.

Beck Mum on any OK For $1 Million Fund

Reports Vary On Decisions By Teamsters

WASHINGTON (AP)—If Dave Beck, beleaguered Teamsters Union president, got the $1 million publicity fund he wanted to tell his own story in the union's money scandals, he wasn't advertising the fact today.

There were conflicting reports that the teamsters executive board, meeting secretly here Monday, (a) had given Beck an OK and (b) had turned down his proposal to spend union money to tell "my story."

Beck maintains he's innocent of Senate Rackets Committee charges he misappropriated at least $320,000 union funds. He invoked the Fifth Amendment before the committee in refusing to answer questions, but has told reporters that while he "borrowed" the money he paid it all back.

One source said what actually happened at Monday's board meeting was that Beck was turned down on his plan for a one million dollar publicity program in his behalf.

ONLY BECK and his chief administrative assistant, Vice President Einar Mohn, were reported to have voted affirmatively on the 13-man board.

But this same source said the board did authorize an amount (he said it was some $150,000 or $200,000) for a one-year advertising program, not publicity, for the Teamsters Union itself. This was described as "limited strictly to telling the teamsters' story," not Beck's.

If the 62-year-old Beck was turned down on his proposition it was a terrific blow to his political grip within the Teamsters.

A union spokesman said there was no consideration given at the meeting to the possibility of withdrawing the Teamsters from the AFL-CIO.

That latter organization's chiefs have suspended Beck as a vice president pending its own investigation of its Teamster management practices.

MEANWHILE, Sen. McClelland (D-Ark.), said that his investigators have found "nothing to indicate any impropriety" by Walter Reuther and three other labor union officials in dealing with Nathan Shefferman.

McClelland heads the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee which has received evidence that Beck used $85,000 of union funds to buy rich clothing and other items at a discount through Shefferman, a Chicago specialist on labor-management relations.

Soviet, British To Continue Tests

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union has refused to abandon H-bomb tests until other powers do. And Britain has again rejected a Japanese appeal that British H-bomb tests in the Pacific Ocean this spring be abandoned.

The Soviet position was restated in a note to Japan distributed here by Tass, the Soviet news agency. Japan, in a note dated March 9, asked Russia to discontinue tests.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told the House of Commons Britain's H-bomb tests "must go on." He said radiation effects would be "insignificant."

Cincy Teamsters Leave Ohio Group

CINCINNATI (AP)—A Cincinnati Teamsters local has agreed to pull out of the Ohio Conference of Teamsters until after the union international convention next fall.

Cincinnati Local 114 recently voted to seek an end to the trusteeship exercised over its affairs since October, 1955, by James R. Hoffa, union international vice president accused of conspiracy in a U. S. Senate investigation.

World News In Brief

Massive Storm Menacing Plains

DENVER (AP)—A massive, slow-moving storm bulging with moisture poured rain and snow over a vast area in the parched Great Plains states today.

Rain or snow soaked drought-stricken lands from Montana and the Dakotas southward through Wyoming, Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle.

Forecasters said the weather system did not appear to pack the vicious wallop of a blizzard 10 days ago that snarled transportation, trapped travelers and killed thousands of cattle.

However, the Weather Bureau at Dallas issued a severe weather and tornado warning for southwestern Oklahoma and portions of western and central Texas.

Livestock men throughout the area were warned to take precautions. Cattle that survived the storm starting March 23 were reported in weakened condition and the new storm posed a serious threat to them.

Ground transportation was reported uninterrupted.

BLIZZARD warnings were issued for western Nebraska and western and central sections of South Dakota, while heavy snow was forecast in western Kansas and the Oklahoma Panhandle.

Winds on the plains were not expected to exceed 25 or 35 miles an hour. The heavy moisture in the snow will probably prevent severe drifting. The storm 10 days ago was accompanied by winds up to 60 and 70 miles an hour.

Colorado Springs, Colo., had eight inches of snow by daybreak and five inches covered Denver. The Weather Bureau said the white flakes were accumulating about two inches an hour at Colorado Springs.

Egypt To Aid UNEF Patrols

Gaza Infiltrators To Israel Curbed

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld says Egypt has agreed to help the U. N. Emergency Force prevent Arab infiltration from the Gaza Strip into Israel.

Hammarskjöld said he received this promise after he notified Cairo that the U. N. Advisory Committee on UNEF hoped Egypt would cooperate in stopping raids into Israel. Egypt replied:

"1. Egypt is making known effectively to the refugees and other inhabitants of the strip that it is Egyptian policy to prevent infiltration across the demarcation line, and this will be re-emphasized from time to time.

"2. The Egyptian regulations against infiltration, which include penalties, are being again put into force. The role of UNEF in assisting in the prevention of infiltration will be made clearly known to the population of the Gaza Strip by appropriate authorities."

Dems Capture Big Plums In Michigan Poll

DETROIT (AP)—Michigan Democrats and their leader, Gov. G. Mennen Williams, surged to new heights in state political power with a sweep of all 10 offices at stake in Monday's spring election.

The big plums in a record turnout of voters were the offices of state highway commissioner and state superintendent of public instruction.

Their capture gave Democrats the last two Republican-held elective posts in the state government's executive branch. It marked the first time they controlled all eight since the setup was originated in 1921.

"The people have rebuked lack of courage and vision in education and highways and have clearly voiced their demand for vigorous and farsighted action," said Williams, who last November was elected to an unprecedented fifth term as governor.

Settlement May Be Closer In Suez Dispute

Dulles Is Optimistic; Egypt's New Stand May Relax Tension

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today he should know in the next 24 to 48 hours whether there is any serious prospect for a satisfactory settlement with Egypt on the operation of the Suez Canal.

Dulles told a news conference he thinks the nations which use the canal should have a much greater voice in its operation than is provided in proposals made by Egypt last week.

He also is seeking in counter proposals to Cairo to get Egypt committed firmly on any Suez Canal plan it may agree to.

The U. S. reply to Egypt's proposals went to Cairo Sunday.

Dulles made clear that as of today he does not know whether the Egyptians will accept any of the changes he suggested or whether there is any chance of successful negotiations with Egypt.

Dulles was the center of a new U. S. foreign policy controversy as the result of a new biography of the Secretary of State.

WRITTEN BY John Beal, Time Magazine diplomatic correspondent in Washington, the book quoted Dulles as saying withdrawal from Egypt of financing for the Aswan Dam was a "Cold War gambit" comparable to three other "brinks of war" policies fashioned by the Eisenhower administration.

Dulles denied today that the United States ever made a flat commitment to defend the Nationalist Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Dulles declared there was no U. S. commitment, secret or otherwise, except for that expressed in a congressional resolution adopted Jan. 28, 1955.

This "Formosa resolution" gave President Eisenhower congressional approval for a fight-if-necessary policy in the Formosa crisis. It left to Eisenhower's discretion the decision to defend the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu off the Communist Chinese mainland, if he felt any attack on them was a Red invasion thrust at Formosa.

In Taipei, Formosa, a spokesman for the Chinese nationalist foreign office had "no comment whatever" today on a report that Eisenhower in a secret letter early in 1955 satisfied Chiang Kai-shek that the United States would help defend Quemoy and Matsu.

Chicago Underworld Combed In Slaying Of Former Banker

CHICAGO (AP)—Police combed the lairs of the underworld today for a clue to the slayers of former banker Leon Marcus.

High on the list of those sought for questioning is Sam (Mooney) Giancana, crime syndicate figure to whom Marcus was known to have loaned $150,000. A note found on the body of Marcus attested to this.

Marcus, 61, who was under indictment as an aftermath of the $2½ million Hodge state fund scandal, was shot to death Sunday night and his body tossed into a vacant lot on the South Side.

On his body police found more than $300,000 in cash and checks and a copy of a receipt for $100,000 paid by Giancana. Cash in the dead man's pockets totaled more than $1,600.

Presence of the hoard of cash caused police to discard robbery as a motive.

INVESTIGATORS were more inclined to the belief that solution of the killing would be found in Marcus' devious financial dealings, which they said included backing gamblers and hoodlums.

The loan to Giancana, regarded by police as one of the top men of the Chicago area crime syndicate, was recorded on a receipt found in Marcus' pocket. Dated Feb. 1, 1955, it stated that Giancana had paid $100,000 "to apply on mortgage in the amount of $150,000 on the property located at 5400 N. River Road known as River Road Motel."

Investigators said the motel formerly was the syndicate's biggest house of prostitution. It was closed three years ago after a blaze of newspaper publicity and later was converted into a motel.

Investigators said other links tying Marcus to dealings with syndicate figures are two buildings near suburban Glenview, sites of the syndicate's biggest gambling operations.

Texas Voters Eye Senate Candidates

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Texans went to the polls in a special election today to choose a U. S. senator with control of the Senate riding on the result.

Seventeen Democrats and two Republicans seek the place of Interim Sen. William A. Blakeley (D-Tex.), who was appointed Jan. 15 by Gov. Allan Shivers to serve until a successor to Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex.), now governor, could be elected.

The term expires in January 1959. Blakeley did not enter the race.

Democrats now control the Senate 49-47. If Texans elect a Republican, the GOP could, with his vote and that of Vice President Richard Nixon, reorganize the Senate.

The campaign generated only a casual interest among voters. Political observers predicted a slight turnout of 700,000 to 800,000 votes and a close race among five Democrats and one Republican. A total of 1,827,922 votes were cast last November.

THE LEADING candidates are: State Sen. Searcy Bracewell, 38, a conservative Democrat from Houston.

Rep. Martin Dies, 56, Bluffton Democrat now serving his second term as congressman-at-large. James Hart, 52, Austin lawyer, a liberal Democrat, former justice of the State Supreme Court and former chancellor of the University of Texas. Thad Hutcheson, 41, Houston attorney, Republican, making his first bid for public office. He has

Navy Bomber Falls, Killing 11 Aboard

CHINCOTEAGUE, Va. (AP)—A Navy twin-engine propeller bomber plunged to earth shortly after taking off from the Chincoteague naval air station today, killing the 11 members of its crew.

Identification of the crew members was being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Paddling Pedagogue Weds One Of His Former Students

McCONNELSVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A former teacher in nearby Deavertown High School who was dismissed for paddling girl students in class has married one of his former pupils.

Jack Eberle, 26, and the former Melda Barker, 19, of Deavertown, were married last Saturday.

Eberle gained widespread attention last March when the Deavertown School Board dismissed him for the paddlings, teaching the Bible during school hours and refusing to perform duties as assistant basketball coach. He had been suspended on these charges the previous November. He unsuccessfully fought his expulsion in a series of 14 hearings before the board over a period of six months.

His bride was not one of those he admitted swatting with a ping-pong paddle for talking and chewing gum in class.

Phone Gag To Zoo Dying Of Old Age

NEW YORK (AP)—The ancient gag of phoning the Bronx Zoo on April Fool's Day and asking for Mr. Lyon, Mr. Fox, Mr. Wolf or Mr. Baer seems to be dying.

The zoo received 2,038 calls Monday, the lowest for a week-day April Fool in some years. In 1955 there were 5,738 calls. "It's getting to be too old a joke," said one thankful official.

Robbins Plans New Motion To Dissolve Ban

Both Biding And Independents Continue Hauling

In addition to final action on one or two important measures, city council tonight may again delve into the current controversy over Circleville's new garbage ordinance.

The lawmakers will meet for their first April session in city hall at 8 p. m.

Council has already pointed out that the garbage ordinance, heatedly opposed by independent haulers, is now beyond the normal scope of council's duties. The garbage legislation moved slowly through council and was given three full readings prior to passage.

However, widespread opposition to the new proposed setup developed after the ordinance was passed and a contract signed.

THE lawmaking body tonight may discuss ways and means to thaw out the dispute between the city-sponsored system and the independent haulers. Yesterday, the haulers were granted a temporary injunction against application of the ordinance.

Meanwhile, a proposal to extend city water lines into the Lowery Lane neighborhood will probably be up for third and final reading tonight.

The proposal has the backing of church leaders, but council has been cool to the plan unless it can be shown that it would be a reasonable investment for the municipality.

An ordinance that would appropriate $5,000 for the water line extension has already had two readings in council. It was learned early today, however, that the total cost of the job may be reduced under a modified proposal to be explained tonight.

It was not clear today whether council is prepared for final reading and a vote on the Ohio Fuel Gas Company's request for higher rates in Circleville. An ordinance to hike the gas rates in the city was put on a sidetrack "until April," and it was not clear whether the legislation will be brought out again at tonight's session or at a later meeting.

Mrs. Bolton Puzzled By Job Reports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Frances P. Bolton (R-Ohio) expressed puzzlement today over reports that she might become assistant secretary of state for Africa.

"This has been all very embarrassing," she said. "They (State Department officials) have not mentioned it to me in any way, shape or form."

In the first place, Mrs. Bolton said, the job "doesn't even exist" at this stage. But she conceded that legislation, with considerable backing in both parties, is pending in Congress to establish the new post.

"If the job is created and you should be offered it, would you take it?" a reporter asked her.

"Oh, that's just theory," she replied. Then she added that she would consider it seriously, but "I would have to be assured of a great many things."

Senate Approves Red Barter Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration's fight for authority to woo Soviet satellites with surplus agricultural commodities shifted to the House today after bowling over Republican leadership opposition in the Senate.

Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, led Monday's unsuccessful fight to ban barter deals with Iron Curtain countries for strategic materials.

The administration had asked such authority. The Senate approved it in passing by voice vote a bill to make an additional $1 billion available to dispose of surplus abroad. The bill also would extend the program to June 30, 1958.

Paddling Pedagogy Weds One Of His Former Students

McCONNELLSVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A former teacher in nearby Deavertown High School who was dismissed for paddling girl students in class has married one of his former pupils.

Jack Eberle, 26, and the former Melda Barker, 19, of Deavertown, were married last Saturday.

Eberle gained widespread attention last March when the Deavertown School Board dismissed him for the paddling, teaching the Bible during school hours and refusing to perform duties as assistant basketball coach. He had been suspended on these charges the previous November. He unsuccessfully fought his expulsion in a series of 14 hearings before the board over a period of six months.

His bride was not one of those he admitted swatting with a ping-pong paddle for talking and chewing gum in class.

Phone Gag To Zoo Dying Of Old Age

NEW YORK (AP)—The ancient gag of phoning the Bronx Zoo on April Fool's Day and asking for Mr. Lyon, Mr. Fox, Mr. Wolf or Mr. Baer seems to be dying.

The zoo received 2,038 calls Monday, the lowest for a week-day April Fool in some years. In 1955 there were 5,738 calls.

"It's getting to be too old a joke," said one thankful official.

Robbins Plans New Motion To Dissolve Ban

Both Biding And Independents Continue Hauling

In addition to final action on one or two important measures, city council tonight may again delve into the current controversy over Circleville's new garbage ordinance.

The lawmakers will meet for their first April session in city hall at 8 p. m.

Council has already pointed out that the garbage ordinance, heatedly opposed by independent haulers, is now beyond the normal scope of council's duties. The garbage legislation moved slowly through council and was given three full readings prior to passage.

However, widespread opposition to the new proposed setup developed after the ordinance was passed and a contract signed.

THE lawmaking body tonight may discuss ways and means to thaw out the dispute between the city-sponsored system and the independent haulers. Yesterday, the haulers were granted a temporary injunction against application of the ordinance.

Meanwhile, a proposal to extend city water lines into the Lowery Lane neighborhood will probably be up for third and final reading tonight.

The proposal has the backing of church leaders, but council has been cool to the plan unless it can be shown that it would be a reasonable investment for the municipality.

An ordinance that would appropriate $5,000 for the water line extension has already had two readings in council. It was learned early today, however, that the total cost of the job may be reduced under a modified proposal to be explained tonight.

It was not clear today whether council is prepared for final reading and a vote on the Ohio Fuel Gas Company's request for higher rates in Circleville. An ordinance to hike the gas rates in the city was put on a sidetrack "until April," and it was not clear whether the legislation will be brought out again at tonight's session or at a later meeting.

Mrs. Bolton Puzzled By Job Reports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Frances P. Bolton (R-Ohio) expressed puzzlement today over reports that she might become assistant secretary of state for Africa.

"This has been all very embarrassing," she said. "They (State Department officials) have not mentioned it to me in any way, shape or form."

In the first place, Mrs. Bolton said, the job "doesn't even exist" at this stage. But she conceded that legislation, with considerable backing in both parties, is pending in Congress to establish the new post.

"If the job is created and you should be offered it, would you take it?" a reporter asked her.

"Oh, that's just theory," she replied. Then she added that she would consider it seriously, but "I would have to be assured of a great many things."

Senate Approves Red Barter Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration's fight for authority to woo Soviet satellites with surplus agricultural commodities shifted to the House today after bowling over Republican leadership opposition in the Senate.

Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, led Monday's unsuccessful fight to ban barter deals with Iron Curtain countries for strategic materials.

The administration had asked such authority. The Senate approved it in passing by voice vote a bill to make an additional $1 billion available to dispose of surplus abroad. The bill also would extend the program to June 30, 1958.

America's Voice Telling World Of City's Merits

When the Voice of America started out to give foreign lands a new and accurate word picture of American life and customs, Circleville was one of the first communities selected as typical of the nation's best.

This was revealed today through the U. S. Information Agency which, in a new radio feature, is telling people abroad what American cities, towns and villages are like. A series of programs called "American Scenes", designed to show the great diversity in American life, is being broadcast in many languages by the Voice of America.

The five-minute scripts discuss the origin and growth of communities, and the special and often unique customs of the people. Issued on a weekly basis, the scripts eventually will touch upon aspects of American life in every state of the Union.

The first three selected show the range of the series.

THEY feature Circleville for its colorful history dating back to 1810. The story told by the Circleville "scene" says the city is "best known for its bold effort to build a round town and for its annual Pumpkin Show."

The other two in the first three cities chosen are Oklahoma City and Hillsboro, N. H.

Planning Commission Challenged By New Petition In Zoning Suit

The City Planning and Zoning Commission has come under attack in the latest move in Circleville's drawn-out zoning litigation.

Gay Rader, Ida Kraft Rader and Muri F. Thornton, plaintiffs in the suit challenging the city's zoning ordinance, have charged in a "second amended petition" that the members of planning group have no authority to enforce the provisions of the zoning ordinance because the commission "has never been properly and legally appointed and constituted by the statutes of the State of Ohio."

The plaintiffs also charged in their new petition that they have purchasers for their real estate but have been unable to sell the land because of "the unauthorized and illegal establishment of purported 'zoning districts' in the City."

It is claimed by the plaintiffs that the creation of these districts denies to them "the full and complete benefits of their ownership" of the real estate.

IN ADDITION to the new allegations, two previous charges alleged in the original petition, filed last November and an amended petition filed in February respectively, were rewritten in the new petition.

The original allegation, now rewritten, claims that provisions of the zoning ordinance establishing districts are vague because the terms of the law make reference to a "zone map" and no such map is attached to the ordinance.

In the second allegation, originally set forth in the plaintiffs amended petition in February, it is

Senators Probing Ban On Newsmen

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee called Robert Murphy, deputy undersecretary of state, before it today to explain the administration's refusal to authorize entry of U. S. newsmen into Red China.

There were reports in advance of the committee session that the State Department now is considering permitting three reporters, representing the three major wire services, to accept a standing offer from China for a visit there.

The department Monday denied a new passport to William Worthy, a Baltimore Afro-American reporter and one of three American newsmen who have defied the U. S. ban on travel to Communist China.

O'Neill was not immediately available for comment.

Figures Show Ike Far Ahead Of His Party

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower ran nearly seven million votes ahead of his party's candidates for the House of Representatives last November. They in turn trailed Democratic opponents by 1,134,000.

GOP House candidates, however, polled 2,958,000 more votes than Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee.

These statistics were made public today in an official compilation by the clerk of the House.

In only one state, North Dakota, did Eisenhower trail the combined Republican House vote. However, the two House nominees were running from the state-at-large, not from separate districts, and neither received as many votes as the President.

Iranian Premier Resigns Post

Action Said Result Of Murder Of Yanks

TEHRAN — Official sources said Prime Minister Hussein Ala resigned today in a Cabinet shuffle resulting from the murder of three Americans by Iranian bandits.

The sources said Ala, who is 74, will be replaced by Dr. Manouchehr Eghbal, energetic 49-year-old court minister to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. Informants said the change would give the government a stronger hand in dealing with tribal defiance.

Announcement of Ala's resignation is expected Wednesday, after a final meeting with his Cabinet, or possibly Thursday. The outgoing prime minister will replace his successor as court minister.

The government meanwhile stepped up its search for Dadshah, the desert outlaw blamed for the ambush killing in southeast Iran of U. S. Point Four official Kevin Carroll, his wife, and Brewster Wilson, a development specialist for the Near East Foundation.

America's Voice Telling World Of City's Merits

When the Voice of America started out to give foreign lands a new and accurate word picture of American life and customs, Circleville was one of the first communities selected as typical of the nation's best.

This was revealed today through the U. S. Information Agency which, in a new radio feature, is telling people abroad what American cities, towns and villages are like. A series of programs called "American Scenes," designed to show the great diversity in American life, is being broadcast in many languages by the Voice of America.

The five-minute scripts discuss the origin and growth of communities, and the special and often unique customs of the people. Issued on a weekly basis, the scripts eventually will touch upon aspects of American life in every state of the Union.

The first three selected show the range of the series.

THEY feature Circleville for its colorful history dating back to 1810. The story told by the Circleville "scene" says the city is "best known for its bold effort to build a round town and for its annual Pumpkin Show."

The other two in the first three cities chosen are Oklahoma City and Hillsboro, N. H.

Planning Commission Challenged By New Petition In Zoning Suit

The City Planning and Zoning Commission has come under attack in the latest move in Circleville's drawn-out zoning litigation.

Guy Rader, Ida Kraft Rader and Muri F. Thornton, plaintiffs in the suit challenging the city's zoning ordinance, have charged in a "second amended petition" that the members of planning group have no authority to enforce the provisions of the zoning ordinance because the commission "has never been properly and legally appointed and constituted by the statutes of the State of Ohio."

The plaintiffs also charged in their new petition that they have purchasers for their real estate but have been unable to sell the land because of "the unauthorized and illegal establishment of purported 'zoning districts' in the City."

It is claimed by the plaintiffs that the creation of these districts denies to them "the full and complete benefits of their ownership" of the real estate.

IN ADDITION to the new allegations, two previous charges alleged in the original petition, filed last November and an amended petition filed in February respectively, were rewritten in the new petition.

The original allegation, now rewritten, claims that provisions of the zoning ordinance establishing districts are vague because the terms of the law make reference to a "zone map" and no such map is attached to the ordinance.

In the second allegation, originally set forth in the plaintiffs amended petition in February, it is

Senators Probing Ban On Newsmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee called Robert Murphy, deputy undersecretary of state, before it today to explain the administration's refusal to authorize entry of U. S. newsmen into Red China.

There were reports in advance of the committee session that the State Department now is considering permitting three reporters, representing the three major wire services, to accept a standing offer from China for a visit there.

The department Monday denied a new passport to William Worthy, a Baltimore Afro-American reporter and one of three American newsmen who have defied the U.S. ban on travel to Communist China.

"THE REPEAL" matter has been under discussion for several weeks now," Mechem said. "It was a decision which required a great deal of thought."

Asked what error O'Neill believes is involved in the adoption of the bill, Mechem replied: "You had better ask the governor for his reasons."

O'Neill was not immediately available for comment.

Figures Show Ike Far Ahead Of His Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower ran nearly seven million votes ahead of his party's candidates for the House of Representatives last November. They in turn trailed Democratic opponents by 1,134,000.

GOP House candidates, however, polled 2,958,000 more votes than Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee.

These statistics were made public today in an official compilation by the clerk of the House.

In only one state, North Dakota, did Eisenhower trail the combined Republican House vote. However, the two House nominees were running from the state-at-large, not from separate districts, and neither received as many votes as the President.

Iranian Premier Resigns Post

Action Said Result Of Murder Of Yanks

TEHRAN (AP) — Official sources said Prime Minister Hussein Ala resigned today in a Cabinet shuffle resulting from the murder of three Americans by Iranian bandits.

The sources said Ala, who is 74, will be replaced by Dr. Manouchehr Eghbal, energetic 49-year-old court minister to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. Informants said the change would give the government a stronger hand in dealing with tribal defiance.

Announcement of Ala's resignation is expected Wednesday, after a final meeting with his Cabinet, or possibly Thursday. The outgoing prime minister will replace his successor as court minister.

The government meanwhile stepped up its search for Dadshah, the desert outlaw blamed for the ambush killing in southeast Iran of U. S. Point Four official Kevin Carroll, his wife, and Brewster Wilson, a development specialist for the Near East Foundation.

Gov. O'Neill Takes Firm Grip On Ohio's State Legislature

By ART PARKS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Republican Gov. C. William O'Neill has taken a firm hold on the reins in the GOP-controlled 102nd General Assembly.

Barring the unforeseen, the Legislature's race to the adjournment will end in about eight weeks.

That means the final working day of the General Assembly probably will come before Memorial Day and the lawmakers will end the session officially with "sine die" adjournment on or before June 15.

After a 2½-hour conference with legislative leaders Monday, O'Neill told newsmen:

"The main point of discussion was expediting adjournment of the Legislature."

Asked when the Legislature would wind up its work, O'Neill replied:

"I'm still sticking to my prediction of June 15."

A major hurdle in the adjournment drive, O'Neill said, will be cleared a week from today when the House is scheduled to vote on the major state budget bill to finance state operations for the two-year period beginning July 1.

And Senate Majority Leader C. Stanley Mechem (R-Athens) commented:

"If we get the budget bill next week, we'll be ready to call it quits for this session in about five weeks."

There's a lot of work to be done, though, before the lawmakers can go home for good.

Much of it has to do with money matters. Due to be introduced in the next few days or whipped into

Gov. O'Neill's 'Spending' Hit By Dem Chief

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Democratic Chairman William L. Coleman believes a "new look of profligate spending" has replaced the "old tradition" of conservatism in the Ohio governor's office.

Coleman criticized what he estimated as a 100 per cent increase in Gov. C. William O'Neill's office salaries, a "fantastic expenditure" of $150,000 to remodel the new mansion, and pay increases up to 150 per cent for cabinet members.

"Through the tenures of many governors of both political parties," Coleman said, "the people of Ohio have come to regard the executive office of our state as repositories of those old, simple virtues through which our state has become great — conservatism in expenditures, regard for the taxpayer and caution in the use of his money."

"Such super-popular governors as Vic Donahey, John Bricker and Frank Lausche were renowned for the care with which they eyed every expenditure of their office."

"That tradition has been tossed to the winds in a short space of three months by the state's new governor."

The sudden elevation from the office of attorney general to the governor's office may have been too much for O'Neill, Coleman said in his statement.

"He may not realize that the people see and the people remember," the Democratic chairman said. "It is only another year until the governor will have to account to the people of Ohio for the aura of waste and extravagance with which he has surrounded himself."

Turnpike Revenue Shows Big Gain

BEREA (AP)—James W. Shocknessy, Ohio Turnpike Commission chairman, is full of optimism about turnpike revenues.

He reported estimated revenue for the month of March, one of the slower months in turnpike use, at about $1,200,000, nearly a half million of it from truck traffic.

Shocknessy said "the increased use of the turnpike by the trucker during the months of least use by the passenger car operator makes the difference between assured success this year against a questionable position at the same time last year."

During the first three months of 1957, revenue has increased 29.4 per cent over the first quarter of 1956, the chairman said.

Statements Heard In Murder Trial

CINCINNATI (AP)—Opening statements were being heard today in the murder trial of Arthur L. Redmon, accused of setting fire to an apartment house in which eight died. Eight women and four men were seated tentatively Monday as the jury to hear the case.

Redmon, 29, was indicted in three of the deaths. This trial involves the death of Terry Jean Clark, 5, whose mother, Mrs. Johnetta Clark, 19, escaped the flames. The prosecution accuses Redmon of using kerosene and matches to start the fire after becoming angry because Mrs. Clark was cool to his attentions.

36 Colleges In Ohio To Gain Grants

CLEVELAND (AP)—Colleges and universities throughout the country, including 36 in Ohio, will benefit from a $1,800,000 grant program announced Monday by the United States Steel Foundation.

The exact amount each school will receive was not announced. Six Greater Cleveland schools are among those that will receive grants. They are Baldwin-Wallace College, Case Institute of Technology, Fenn College, John Carroll University, Ursuline College and Western Reserve University.

Others in Ohio that will benefit from the program are:

Antioch, Ashland, Bluffton, Capital, Cincinnati, Dayton, Defiance, Denison, Findlay, Heidelberg, Hiram, Kenyon, Lake Erie, Marietta, Mary Manse, Mount St. Joseph-of-the-Ohio, Mount Union, Muskingum, Oberlin, Ohio State, Ohio Wesleyan, Otterbein, Our Lady of Cincinnati, St. Mary of the Springs, Western, Wilmington, Wittenberg, Wooster, Youngstown and Xavier.

'Informer' Speaks At Tax Fraud Trial

CINCINNATI (AP)—A previously unidentified "informer" testified here Monday concerning the affairs of Floyd L. Rose and his wife, Gertrude, Excelsior, Ohio, lumber dealers, who are on trial in U. S. District Court on charges of income tax fraud.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose are charged with evading $59,388.90 in income taxes.

Clarence Ayers testified he was employed by the Roses from May to August 1952 and said he quit because of the "chaotic" method of handling money. He said that on advice of his attorney he reported the situation to federal authorities "for my own protection."

On cross examination he denied he knew informers in income tax cases received a reward.

High Schools 'Lax' On Geography

CINCINNATI (AP)—Criticism of the lack of geography courses in high schools has come at the annual convention of the Association of American Geographers.

Prof. Clarence F. Jones of Evanston, Ill., president of the association, said youngsters learn geography in grade schools but that the subject seldom is mentioned in high schools.

By the time the youngsters get to college, Prof. Jones said, "He doesn't know what geography is all about."

Prof. Jones said only a few states now provide for the teaching of geography in high schools and that although the situation is improving "it still needs more improving."

A major hurdle in the adjournment drive, O'Neill said, will be cleared a week from today when the House is scheduled to vote on the major state budget bill to finance state operations for the two-year period beginning July 1.

And Senate Majority Leader C. Stanley Mechem (R-Athens) commented:

"If we get the budget bill next week, we'll be ready to call it quits for this session in about five weeks."

There's a lot of work to be done, though, before the lawmakers can go home for good.

Much of it has to do with money matters. Due to be introduced in the next few days or whipped into

Gov. O'Neill's 'Spending' Hit By Dem Chief

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Democratic Chairman William L. Coleman believes a "new look of profligate spending" has replaced the "old tradition" of conservatism in the Ohio governor's office.

Coleman criticized what he estimated as a 100 per cent increase in Gov. C. William O'Neill's office salaries, a "fantastic expenditure" of $150,000 to remodel the new mansion, and pay increases up to 150 per cent for cabinet members.

"Through the tenures of many governors of both political parties," Coleman said, "the people of Ohio have come to regard the executive office of our state as repositories of those old, simple virtues through which our state has become great — conservatism in expenditures, regard for the taxpayer and caution in the use of his money."

"Such super-popular governors as Vic Donahey, John Bricker and Frank Lausche were renowned for the care with which they eyed every expenditure of their office."

"That tradition has been tossed to the winds in a short space of three months by the state's new governor."

The sudden elevation from the office of attorney general to the governor's office may have been too much for O'Neill, Coleman said in his statement.

"He may not realize that the people see and the people remember," the Democratic chairman said. "It is only another year until the governor will have to account to the people of Ohio for the aura of waste and extravagance with which he has surrounded himself."

Turnpike Revenue Shows Big Gain

BEREA (AP)—James W. Shocknessy, Ohio Turnpike Commission chairman, is full of optimism about turnpike revenues.

He reported estimated revenue for the month of March, one of the slower months in turnpike use, at about $1,200,000, nearly a half million of it from truck traffic.

Shocknessy said "the increased use of the turnpike by the trucker during the months of least use by the passenger car operator makes the difference between assured success this year against a questionable position at the same time last year."

During the first three months of 1957, revenue has increased 29.4 per cent over the first quarter of 1956, the chairman said.

Statements Heard In Murder Trial

CINCINNATI (AP)—Opening statements were being heard today in the murder trial of Arthur L. Redmon, accused of setting fire to an apartment house in which eight died. Eight women and four men were seated tentatively Monday as the jury to hear the case.

Redmon, 29, was indicted in three of the deaths. This trial involves the death of Terry Jean Clark, 5, whose mother, Mrs. Johnetta Clark, 19, escaped the flames. The prosecution accuses Redmon of using kerosene and matches to start the fire after becoming angry because Mrs. Clark was cool to his attentions.

High Schools 'Lax' On Geography

CINCINNATI (AP)—Criticism of the lack of geography courses in high schools has come at the annual convention of the Association of American Geographers.

Prof. Clarence F. Jones of Evanston, Ill., president of the association, said youngsters learn geography in grade schools but that the subject seldom is mentioned in high schools.

By the time the youngster gets to college, Prof. Jones said, "He doesn't know what geography is all about."

Prof. Jones said only a few states now provide for the teaching of geography in high schools and that although the situation is improving "it still needs more improving."

'Informer' Speaks At Tax Fraud Trial

CINCINNATI (AP)—A previously unidentified "informer" testified here Monday concerning the affairs of Floyd L. Rose and his wife, Gertrude, Excelsior, Ohio, lumber dealers, who are on trial in U. S. District Court on charges of income tax fraud.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose are charged with evading $59,388.90 in income taxes. Clarence Ayers testified he was employed by the Roses from May to August 1952 and said he quit because of the "chaotic" method of handling money. He said that on advice of his attorney he reported the situation to federal authorities "for my own protection."

On cross examination he denied he knew informers in income tax cases received a reward.

True Love Story On Page One

It's a common criticism of newspapers that they overstate the negative and fail to accentuate the positive. The answer is that it is the out-of-the-ordinary that makes news, and as a result it is often the shocking story that gets the big headline.

But the seamy side of the picture is not the only one that gets painted. Newspapers present the bright side, too.

For proof, attention is called to the accounts of the love affair between Harold Connolly, this country's Olympic hammer throw champion, and Miss Olga Fikitova, Czechoslovakia's Olympic discus champion. Newspaper readers were kept up to date on developments in that tangled romance.

And finally they were informed that the Czechoslovak government had agreed to permit the girl in the affair to marry the good-looking American and leave the country. That story appeared on page one of most of the leading metropolitan newspapers of the country.

It will be said that all the world loves a lover, and news editors know it. It's true that there was a long series of distressing dispatches before the happy outcome, which is to say that this story had suspense.

But this time it wasn't a sensational crime that got the headlines but a boy meets girl situation illustrating the old observation that the course of true love never does run smooth.

This is not to contend that copyreaders have hearts and were therefore just as hopeful as anybody, when the story broke, that things would work out all right. Nor is the claim made that they were thrilled when young Mr. Connolly set out to move heaven and earth to get his girl. Or that they rejoiced when love triumphed over every obstacle. No doubt they react just like other people, by and large, but no such claims are advanced here.

All that is pointed out is that here was a tender love story that made page one. If anyone wants to do so, he can write it down.

Planning To Leave 'Gold Coffin' By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—After living seven years in a "gold coffin," Dorothy Collins feels right now like an emerging butterfly that has stayed overlong in its cocoon.

"I want to stretch my wings and see how far I can fly on my own," she said.

The "gold coffin" in her case has been "Your Hit Parade," the durable radio show that also invaded video in 1950 and for most of the time since then has been among the top 15 TV programs.

Although it is a wonderful showcase for talent, such a program is known in the entertainment world as "a gold coffin." The reason: it pays too good to leave, but in time it becomes a kind of straitjacket to a performer.

This season will be the last for bandleader Raymond Scott, Miss Collins (his wife) and the other three singers—Gisele Mackenzie, Snooky Lanson and Russell Arms.

Next year the sponsors will continue the program under the same format with a new crew of faces. This decision implies no criticism of the five who are departing. As a matter of fact they have remained on the show far longer than any other similar group in its 23-year history.

It has been a policy of "Hit Parade" over the years to change its singers almost as often as its tunes.

Among earlier stars who have twinkled on the show and gone on to other things are Dinah Shore, Frank Sinatra, Lawrence Tibbett, Dorothy Kirsten, Doris Day and Georgia Gibbs.

Miss Collins and Snooky Lanson, teamed on the show since it started its TV career seven years ago, hold the longevity record. Dorothy, a cute blonde whose trademarks were a blouse and a velvet ribbon bow tie, started by singing the commercial jingle on the show, quickly graduated to stellar rank.

Canadian born, she became a vocalist at 12 but never took a singing lesson until after she became a professional at 16.

To prepare herself for a dramatic career, she has been studying acting and dancing intensively. She is currently considering two musical comedy roles and a movie offer.

"I'd really like to see what I can do in a serious role," she said, "but most of all I want to escape from singing teenage love songs. I'm a little tired of them."

She and Raymond Scott live in a 32-room home on an 11-acre Long Island estate with their daughter, Debbie, 2½.

Scott expects to have more time now to concentrate on his musical compositions. One of his latest efforts is entitled, "Dedicated Piece to the Crew and Passengers of the First Experimental Rocket Express to the Moon."

It has never been featured on "Hit Parade."

Realism And Dull Stereotypes By George Sokolsky

Recently it has fallen to my lot to see more movies than usual and more television shows at late hours and the thought has come to me that the romantic stereotypes which have been identical over the years do not portray American life as vividly or as correctly as the realistic concepts of Paddy Chayefsky whose "Marty" was as authentic as "Abie's Irish Rose," and whose forthcoming "The Bachelor Party" not only is excellent portraiture but includes the quality of depth. His characters not only live, but they discover that there are basic, unchangeable, permanent laws of life which are violated at our peril.

David Belasco used to seek realistic portrayals of romantic themes. But realism in the movies and on television has been suffocated by the need for stereotypes so that there might be a speedy identification by the viewer of the personality. A Hitchcock detective is generally detected just as in a Western, the hero sits on a white horse.

But simple, plain people are never really stereotyped, except perhaps by a dialect. The inhabitants of a public housing project look and dress and act less alike than the inhabitants of a Park Avenue tenement of the rich. The latter all take on the current fashionable mannerisms; the former fight for individuality because that is what makes the big difference in their lives. They call it personality. When they say that such and such a one has personality, they mean that despite the austere, austere of proletarian lives, the person has achieved individuality, that the person stands out. This Paddy Chayefsky manages to convey with keener perspicacity than most writers today.

There is another point about "The Bachelor Party" that interested me sufficiently to write about it. Each generation makes its own life and accepts its own forms. For instance, when I was 16, a girl would not be found dead in the knee-length, white cotton, shapeless stockings that current teenagers find fashionable. In those days, a high school girl wore a white middie blouse, a full blue skirt, black stockings, neatly gartered. She would have regarded the current styles as sloppy.

These are not matters of style only; these are characteristics of the mind of the times and youth is an excellent measure of a generation because it is thus possible to project into the future. Certainly the alcoholic abnormalities of the 1920s were not without their influence upon the spiritual depression of the 1930s—a spiritual depression, the effects of which we feel today in the myriad confusions in both the public and family life of our times.

So, for one who comes from another, a more peaceful and stable generation, it is interesting to watch the struggle for identity of the younger folks who today have all sorts of advantages except the one of stability. Paddy Chayefsky catches that in "The Bachelor Party" even better than in "Marty," for he has discovered the loneliness that can exist within a crowd.

There is an interracial party somewhere in Greenwich Village, one of those bang-up affairs that John Kasper used to attend, the same Kasper who is now a fierce racist. At this party is a girl who says she is from Vassar and who boasts of peccadilloes like a flapper in the 1920s. She is a frightfully lonely girl who can explain everything in life by the existentialism of Sartre, except her own loneliness which probably has no other explanation than that she is at heart a decent, fine person who wants to appear wicked and awful and therefore has a confusion of her own. Before she will allow herself to be kissed, she asks the young man to say that he loves her even if he does not mean it.

She really craves an ordinary married life, the kind that goes with a GI mortgage and two babies in three years, but she needs to appear as though she needs four husbands and 10 lovers like a dame who is trying to make Confidential magazine. This character is brilliantly delineated and played. I do not remember the name of the actress not being a movie critic, but only a viewer who buys a ticket and sits in back to the chagrin of the teen-agers who like to neck in the rear of a house. What do they want with anyone of my generation in their preserves?

Is It Wise To Have Baby "By Appointment"?

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT'S entirely possible, in many instances now, to "have a baby by appointment."

Parents actually have arranged to have their babies born on a specific date such as a wedding anniversary, or at a time when it is convenient for their vacation plans.

To Reduce Taxes

Some have gone so far as to insist that their baby be born in time to claim him as an income tax deduction.

As I said, all this is possible. But is it advisable? Except for certain special cases, it is not.

Recently, a panel of distinguished doctors charged in a national magazine that some of the nation's obstetricians are endangering the lives of their patients by allowing them, without proper indication, to follow this fad of having babies by appointment.

Induced Labor

By appointment I mean by induced labor, the obstetrical practice doctors call elective induction of labor. This is a procedure by which obstetricians are able to induce premature labor in pregnant women.

The panel of experts reported in the magazine that, "In some hospitals one out of every three private patients now has her baby by appointment." That seems to be far too many. Of course, some few patients might be suitable for elective induction.

As a guide for doctors and expectant mothers alike, the board listed the following criteria as essential before elective induction can be used safely:

The patient must be pregnant with her second or third child, not her first or fourth.

Within Normal Range

She must be within the normal child-bearing range. Women over 35 may have lost muscular suppleness and be more prone to rupture.

The patient must not be having twins or triplets.

The unborn baby must be lying in a normal position.

A doctor with considerable obstetrical experience must be willing to remain constantly at the patient's side during elective induction.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

F. P.: Can prostate gland trouble be cured without surgery?

Answer: Various forms of treatment are suggested for this condition.

Massage of the prostate is usually advisable when the enlargement is due to infection. Surgery may be necessary to completely relieve some prostatic gland disturbances.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—It may star-tle you but—the vice president to-morrow could declare the president unable to carry out his duties and announce himself as president.

So far the two vice presidents who had the best excuse for doing that — those who served under President Garfield, who lingered 80 days after being shot, and President Wilson, laid up for 17 months — did nothing of the kind.

But what would stop some future vice president — in a situation unimaginable now, say crisis, ambition, political conflict — from trying to get the presidency by declaring the president disabled?

The biggest single deterrent would be the power of Congress to impeach him if it thought he was trying to usurp the presidency. Nevertheless, such a try some-day is possible so long as the present constitutional gap on the presidency remains.

The Constitution says:

"In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president..."

In that sentence the Constitution does one thing, fails to do another:

1. It gives the vice president power — to step into the presidency — on a contingent basis. That is, he assumes the office if the president is disabled.

2. It fails to say who decides

Realism And Dull Stereotypes By George Sokolsky

Recently it has fallen to my lot to see more movies than usual and more television shows at late hours and the thought has come to me that the romantic stereotypes which have been identical over the years do not portray American life as vividly or as correctly as the realistic concepts of Paddy Chayefsky whose "Marty" was as authentic as "Abie's Irish Rose," and whose forthcoming "The Bachelor Party" not only is excellent portraiture but includes the quality of depth. His characters not only live, but they discover that there are basic, unchangeable, permanent laws of life which are violated at our peril.

David Belasco used to seek realistic portrayals of romantic themes. But realism in the movies and on television has been suffocated by the need for stereotypes so that there might be a speedy identification by the viewer of the personality. A Hitchcock detective is generally detected just as in a Western, the hero sits on a white horse.

But simple, plain people are never really stereotyped, except perhaps by a dialect. The inhabitants of a public housing project look and dress and act less alike than the inhabitants of a Park Avenue tenement of the rich. The latter all take on the current fashionable mannerisms, the former fight for individuality because that is what makes the big difference in their lives. They call it personality. When they say that such and such a one has personality, they mean that despite the austere-ness of proletarian lives, the person has achieved individuality, that the person stands out. This Paddy Chayefsky manages to convey with keener perspicacity than most writers today.

There is another point about "The Bachelor Party" that interested me sufficiently to write about it. Each generation makes its own life and accepts its own forms. For instance, when I was 16, a girl would not be found dead in the knee-length, white cotton, shapeless stockings that current teenagers find fashionable. In those days, a high school girl wore a white middie blouse, a full blue skirt, black stockings, neatly gar-

tered. She would have regarded the current styles as sloppy.

These are not matters of style only; these are characteristics of the mind of the times and youth is an excellent measure of a generation because it is thus possible to project into the future. Certainly the alcoholic abnormalities of the 1920s were not without their influence upon the spiritual depression of the 1930s—a spiritual depression, the effects of which we feel today in the myriad confusions in both the public and family life of our times.

So, for one who comes from another, a more peaceful and stable generation, it is interesting to watch the struggle for identity of the younger folks who today have all sorts of advantages except the one of stability. Paddy Chayefsky catches that in "The Bachelor Party" even better than in "Marty," for he has discovered the loneliness that can exist within a crowd.

There is an interracial party somewhere in Greenwich Village, one of those bang-up affairs that John Kasper used to attend, the same Kasper who is now a fierce racist. At this party is a girl who says she is from Vassar and who boasts of peccadilloes like a flapper in the 1920s. She is a frightfully lonely girl who can explain everything in life by the existentialism of Sartre, except her own loneliness which probably has no other explanation than that she is at heart a decent, fine person who wants to appear wicked and awful and therefore has a confusion of her own. Before she will allow herself to be kissed, she asks the young man to say that he loves her even if he does not mean it.

She really craves an ordinary married life, the kind that goes with a GI mortgage and two babies in three years, but she also wants to appear as though she needs four husbands and 10 lovers like a dame who is trying to make Confidential magazine. This character is brilliantly delineated and played. I do not remember the name of the actress, not being a movie critic, but only a viewer who buys a ticket and sits in back to the chagrin of the teen-agers who like to neck in the rear of a house. What do they want with anyone of my generation in their preserves?

Is It Wise To Have Baby "By Appointment"?

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT'S entirely possible, in many instances now, to "have a baby by appointment."

Parents actually have arranged to have their babies born on a specific date such as a wedding anniversary, or at a time when it is convenient for their vacation plans.

To Reduce Taxes

Some have gone so far as to insist that their baby be born in time to claim him as an income tax deduction.

As I said, all this is possible. But is it advisable? Except for certain special cases, it is not.

Recently, a panel of distinguished doctors charged in a national magazine that some of the nation's obstetricians are endangering the lives of their patients by allowing them, without proper indication, to follow this fad of having babies by appointment.

Induced Labor

By appointment I mean by induced labor, the obstetrical practice doctors call elective induction of labor. This is a procedure by which obstetricians are able to induce premature labor in pregnant women.

The panel of experts reported in the magazine that, "In some hospitals one out of every three private patients now has her baby by appointment." That seems to be far too many. Of course, some few patients might be suitable for elective induction. As a guide for doctors and expectant mothers alike, the board listed the following criteria as essential before elective induction can be used safely:

The patient must be pregnant with her second or third child, not her first or fourth.

Within Normal Range

She must be within the normal child-bearing range. Women over 35 may have lost muscular suppleness and be more prone to rupture.

The patient must not be having twins or triplets. The unborn baby must be lying in a normal position.

A doctor with considerable obstetric experience must be willing to remain constantly at the patient's side during elective induction.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

F. P.: Can prostate gland trouble be cured without surgery?

Answer: Various forms of treatment are suggested for this condition.

Massage of the prostate is usually advisable when the enlargement is due to infection. Surgery may be necessary to completely relieve some prostatic gland dysfunction.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—It may startle you but—the vice president tomorrow could declare the president unable to carry out his duties and announce himself as president.

So far the two vice presidents who had the best excuse for doing that — those who served under President Garfield, who lingered 80 days after being shot, and President Wilson, laid up for 17 months — did nothing of the kind.

But what would stop some future vice president — in a situation unimaginable now, say crisis, ambition, political conflict — from trying to get the presidency by declaring the president disabled?

The biggest single deterrent would be the power of Congress to impeach him if it thought he was trying to usurp the presidency. Nevertheless, such a try someday is possible so long as the present constitutional gap on the presidency remains.

The Constitution says:

"In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president..."

In that sentence the Constitution does one thing, fails to do another:

1. It gives the vice president power—to step into the presidency—on a contingent basis. That is, he assumes the office if the president is disabled.
2. It fails to say who decides the President is disabled. It does not say the vice president shall or shall not make the decision. Under law, when a man is granted power on a contingent basis—and when there is no language to the contrary — the decision on when to assume that power is up to him. This was pointed out Monday by Atty. Gen. Brownell, who told Congress:

"It is a well-established rule of law that in contingent grants of power the one to whom power is granted is to decide when the emergency has arisen. Thus the vice president is constituted the judge of the President's inability."

Brownell — representing the views of President Eisenhower — urged Congress to fill this gap in the Constitution by a constitutional amendment which he proposed. This was it:

A vice president himself would never be able to move into the presidency by declaring the president disabled. Instead, this would be the procedure:

If a president was unable to carry out his duties and was mentally alert enough to know it, he could instruct the vice president — but he'd have to do it in writing — to take over temporarily until the president recovered.

If for any reason the President was unable to carry out his duties but couldn't or wouldn't say so, the vice president could become President temporarily but only if a majority of the President's Cabinet approved in writing.

If the President never recovered the vice president, of course, would continue in the office of the presidency. But if the President recovered — and said so in writing — the vice president would have to step aside.

This was intended, among other things, to settle an old argument over this question: Is a vice president the permanent President once he takes over the duties of the presidency?

But students of the Constitution could find flaws, real or imagined, in Brownell's proposal. Because that's so, and because there is so much disagreement in Congress on what to do and how and whether anything needs to be done, it's almost certain nothing will be done.

Home Building Industry Eyes Money Policy

Easing Of Government Credit May Not Prime Pump Quite Enough

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The private recession of the home building industry is causing the government to ease up on part of its tight money policy. Many congressmen are in the mood to prime the pump still more.

It's an official recognition that in one area of the economy, at least, the threat appears to be from deflation, not inflation.

But a number of builders and lenders today question whether there'll be a big spurt in home building again until the entire money and credit situation eases itself—as they think it will may be in the next few months through operation of the law of supply and demand.

Builders say they can't find the money to finance mortgages. Lenders argue there's money available—at a price and for the better risks.

The government's move is to lower the required downpayments on mortgages guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration. The new rules call for a minimum downpayment of $750 on a $12,000 house. This is a drop of $240. The aim: to make it easier for families who can get up the $750, but who didn't have $990, to start payments on a new home.

Bankers and other lenders point out that most of them have required considerably more of a downpayment than the $990—closer to 20 per cent, or $2,400.

Also most lenders have been discounting the FHA mortgages by three per cent or more. That is, the borrower gets 97 per cent of the face value of the mortgage, although he must repay at 100 per cent, and his interest is figured on the entire amount. This is a move to get around the lower interest rates on government-backed mortgages.

Bankers say it was this discounting practice, rather than the size of downpayments, that has deterred builders and home buyers.

Lenders argue that lowering the down payment even further won't bring out any money from investors who have been showing preference for the conventional mortgage, which usually carries considerably higher rates than the FHA variety—although in December the government raised the FHA interest rate to 5 per cent from 4½ per cent. Housing starts have continued to drop since then.

Several bankers and some members of Congress doubt that other measures recently taken by the administration to make more money available for mortgages will make a very noticeable difference.

New York state housing commissioner Joseph P. McMurray this week is urging Congress to set up some form of central mortgage banking facility, stronger than the Federal Home Loan banks, which would stabilize the home mortgage market as the Federal Reserve System does the commercial financing field.

Others have suggested taking the ceiling off interest rates on government guaranteed mortgages to let them compete freely in the tight money market with other forms of investment.

Coal Pipeline Plug Gone, To Try It Again

CADIZ, Ohio (AP)—A plug of oversize coal that blocked tests of the 108-mile long Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. pipeline early this year has been removed, the firm reported today.

James Hyslop, president of Hanna Coal Co., a Pitt Consol subsidiary, said test water now is being pumped through the line which runs from Cadiz to Eastlake, Hyslop said.

"Until a major part of the slurry had been removed, it was impossible to determine the cause of the first plug. It now is clear that the principal reason for the stoppage was an improper size mixture of the 400 tons used in this particular test."

The pipelines is the first commercial venture on a large scale to transport coal in such a fashion. The pipeline was designed to move coal from Pitt Consol mines to an Ohio utility firm.

Hyslop said that in addition to the improper size of the coal mix many oversize pieces of coal were found in the slurry removed from the blocked line. He said: "There undoubtedly will be many additional difficulties before the line gets into regular operation... as this is almost inevitable in a pioneer project of this kind and scope."

Court OKs Plan For Private Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has dealt a blow to public power advocates by refusing to review Federal Power Commission licensing of three private power company dams in Hells Canyon.

The case for years has been the center of a political and private-public power dispute. Public power groups appealed to the high tribunal after the U.S. Court of Appeals here upheld the FPC license for private power dams on the Snake River bordering Idaho and Oregon.

The public power groups have been seeking approval for construction of a single high federal dam in Hells Canyon.

"Mary Hawthorth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A group of us Canadians believe you give good advice occasionally, but your March 11 column was utter tripe

We refer to the story of the boy, 11, who upset his parents at dinner by asking their advice on his "love problem." The parents in turn appealed to grandma, who then asked you to recommend helpful reading dealing with boy-girl guidance.

All Europe is amazed at the teen-age crime here; and the emphasis on sex. Your advice in regard to an 11-year-old on love is typical.

At age 11, children should be interested in games and fun, and leave sex for its proper time. The more intelligent tell us they are high pressured into it.

A Hindu (a very highly educated man) told me that the Indians did not want any part of our "sex craze." He said conversation among North Americans does not last five minutes without sex; and at parties it is the only subject!! He has lived in North America.

You mentioned also, on Feb. 21, the wrong impression the world has of North American women—"based on lack of knowledge, misinformation and jealous prejudice, in large part," I think you said.

Yet men who fought in Korea have told me they would readily marry gentle Korean and Japanese women, in preference to their hardboiled women at home, who are putting them into early graves, giving them bigger cars, homes, etc.

Believe me, the people of Europe and Asia are often happier in their so-called "lower standards" of living. "Man doesn't live by bread alone," you know.

B. C.: How mixed-up can you get? How biased can you be? The March 11 discussion of a family's desire for right answers to a boy's candid appeal for parental advice, in dealing with puppy love, was a marked departure from the general run of material used here. For that very reason, you found it surprising, disconcerting and distasteful.

Yet, in saying so, you try in the same breath to argue that it just goes to show that Americans are sex crazy—even our children. That's pouncing upon the exception and calling it the rule—which is illogical.

Another remark is equally rattled; namely, your clucking observation that "The more intelligent tell us they are high-pressured into it"—"it" meaning sex precocity, I gather. But persons can't be very intelligent, who permit themselves to be stampeded into behavior they deplore; now can they? They sound like chameleons without conviction, who take on the coloration of whatever company they're in—and cringe to your critiques, when in your presence.

The highly educated Hindu's quotes are flighty too. It is my understanding, and the world's impression, that child marriages

(with sex an ingredient, presumably) were a social idiosyncrasy of the Indian culture—until quite recently, at least. So why his disparaging recoil from implications of youthful interest in sex in another land? Incongruous, isn't it?

To regain perspective on sex, internationally, you might read C. S. Lewis' account of his boyhood in the British Isles—told in "Surprised by Joy" (Harcourt, Brace). He recalls that sex intrigues were habitual among English public school boys of his era, beginning as early as age 13. (See pages 87-89). Lewis is the brilliant author of "The Screwtape Letters" and many other Christian works.

The 11-year-old's problem was naive and sexless, actually. He was concerned with baffled love, or idol-worship, not with amour, in the sense you mean.

Jefferson County Seeking Slayer

STEBENVILLE (AP)—A search was being made today for Lawrence E. Ray, 35, who, Jefferson County authorities said, is wanted in connection with the shotgun slaying of Ignatz Levinsky, 74. Prosecutor Bernard T. McCann said a warrant charging first degree murder was issued Monday for Ray's arrest.

Levinsky's body was found by neighbors Saturday in the basement of the farm home where he lived alone at Dun Glen, near Yorkville. Sheriff Clarence Eberts said he had been shot twice in the head and beaten with a shovel.

Lake Water Use Sought By Group

MEDINA (AP)—Legislation enabling water to be pumped from Lake Erie to eight northeastern

Ohio counties should be passed before the state Legislature ends its current session, John H. Byrne, executive secretary of the Lake Erie Watershed Conservation Foundation said here Monday.

The legislation he proposes would establish an organization to develop and make available supplies of water. The organization, according to Byrne, should have the authority to construct and operate systems for the supply and distribution of lake water and for disposal of sewage. Water pumped out of Lake Erie would eventually flow back into it, Byrne asserted, with no loss to the watershed.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A group of us Canadians believe you give good advice occasionally, but your March 11 column was utter tripe.

We refer to the story of the boy, 11, who upset his parents at dinner by asking their advice on his "love problem." The parents in turn appealed to grandma, who then asked you to recommend helpful reading dealing with boy-girl guidance.

All Europe is amazed at the teen-age crime here; and the emphasis on sex. Your advice in regard to an 11-year-old on love is typical.

At age 11, children should be interested in games and fun, and leave sex for its proper time. The more intelligent tell us they are high pressured into it.

A Hindu (a very highly educated man) told me that the Indians did not want any part of our "sex craze." He said conversation among North Americans does not last five minutes without sex; and at parties it is the only subject! He has lived in North America.

You mentioned also, on Feb. 21, the wrong impression the world has of North American women—"based on lack of knowledge, misinformation and jealous prejudice, in large part." I think you said.

Yet men who fought in Korea have told me they would readily marry gentle Korean and Japanese women, in preference to their hardboiled women at home, who are putting them into early graves, giving them bigger cars, homes, etc.

Believe me, the people of Europe and Asia are often happier in their so-called "lower standards" of living. "Man doesn't live by bread alone," you know.

DEAR B. C.: How mixed up can you get? How biased can you be? The March 11 discussion of a family's desire for right answers to a boy's candid appeal for parental advice, in dealing with puppy love, was a marked departure from the general run of material used here. For that very reason, you found it surprising, disconcerting and distasteful.

Yet, in saying so, you try in the same breath to argue that it just goes to show that Americans are sex crazy—even our children. That's pouncing upon the exception and calling it the rule—which is illogical.

Another remark is equally rattled; namely, your clucking observation that "The more intelligent tell us they are high-pressured into it"—"it" meaning sex precocity, I gather. But persons can't be very intelligent, who permit themselves to be stampeded into behavior they deplore; now can they? They sound like chameleons without conviction, who take on the coloration of whatever company they're in—and cringe to your critiques, when in your presence.

The highly educated Hindu's quotes are flighty too. It is my understanding, and the world's impression, that child marriages

(with sex an ingredient, presumably) were a social idiosyncrasy of the Indian culture—until quite recently, at least. So why his disparaging recoil from implications of youthful interest in sex in another land? Incongruous, isn't it?

To regain perspective on sex, internationally, you might read C. S. Lewis' account of his boyhood in the British Isles—told in "Surprised by Joy" (Harcourt, Brace). He recalls that sex intrigues were habitual among English public school boys of his era, beginning as early as age 13. (See pages 87-89). Lewis is the brilliant author of "The Screwtape Letters" and many other Christian works.

The 11-year-old's problem was naive and sexless, actually. He was concerned with baffled love, or idol-worship, not with amour, in the sense you mean.

Jefferson County Seeking Slayer

STEBENVILLE (AP)—A search was being made today for Lawrence E. Ray, 35, who, Jefferson County authorities said, is wanted in connection with the shotgun slaying of Ignatz Levinsky, 74.

Prosecutor Bernard T. McCann said a warrant charging first degree murder was issued Monday for Ray's arrest.

Levinsky's body was found by neighbors Saturday in the basement of the farm home where he lived alone at Dun Glen, near Yorkville. Sheriff Clarence Eberts said he had been shot twice in the head and beaten with a shovel.

Lake Water Use Sought By Group

MEDINA (AP)—Legislation enabling water to be pumped from Lake Erie to eight northeastern

Ohio counties should be passed before the state Legislature ends its current session, John H. Byrne, executive secretary of the Lake Erie Watershed Conservation Foundation said here Monday.

Bond Rule Given

COLUMBUS (AP)—Atty. Gen. William Saxbe has ruled that county commissioners may not retire highway bonds raised through the so-called second gasoline tax of two cents a gallon, appropriated by the Legislature to counties.

The legislation he proposes would establish an organization to develop and make available supplies of water. The organization, according to Byrne, should have the authority to construct and operate systems for the supply and distribution of lake water and for disposal of sewage. Water pumped out of Lake Erie would eventually flow back into it, Byrne asserted, with no loss to the watershed.

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE A HASSOCK

A hassock can be made by the home craftsman to have that finished furniture look.

The legs are made of 2 by 4-inch lumber, tapered as shown in the diagram. Start the taper 8½ inches from the top end of the leg.

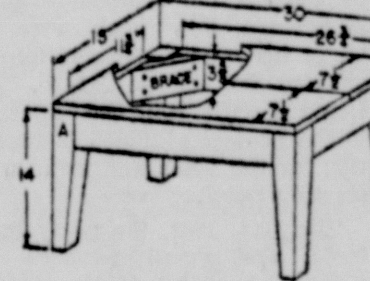

The stringers are made of 1 by 4-inch lumber. Use a miter box to help cut square ends.

The legs and stringers are assembled with dowel joints. Dowel holes ¾-inch in diameter are drilled with a No. 6 auger bit. The holes are drilled 1 inch deep. Cut the dowel pins 1½ inches long and groove them to provide a tight joint. The braces are cut from 1 by 4-inch lumber. Assemble them to the frame with No. 10 flathead screws, 1½ inches long.

Make the top of 1 by 8-inch lumber. Fasten in place with 6-penny finishing nails.

Cover the stool with foam rubber and upholstery material. Use decorative tacks to fasten the material in place.

Mrs. Barnes Presents Paper At Meet Of Monday Club

Group Makes Plans To Attend Session

Mrs. George Barnes presented the paper, "Scientists and Derring Do," at last evening's meeting of the Monday Club.

"As the years of the 19th century passed in rapid succession, in like manner cities and villages from the Mississippi to the Pacific came into existence, many remote places were explored as the people made their homes in the valleys along the rivers. There was a special river which attracted more than one grave man to explore its dangerous course. Carl Sandberg has described it in these lines: '... Smooth as glass run the streaming waters, then a break into rapids, into tumblers, into spray, into voices, roars, growls, into commanding monotonous that hunt far corners and jumping places.' Mrs. George Barnes told of men who followed this river.

"Spain's sun had set in the Far West before 1800 and Mexico's never rose. The newborn Mexican nation of 1821 had only a confused idea of its northernmost lands, and only tenuous claims upon them. Mexico owned, by right the first exploration, all of Nevada, Utah and Colorado, although only a small portion of this area had been visited. The United States owned the area embraced by the Louisiana Purchase of 1803, and this extended from the Mississippi west to the Rockies, not a definite boundary, but overlapping the Mexican claims in some instances. Actually nobody knew who had what, and as late as 1825 men thought there might be a river in Colorado that flowed into San Francisco Bay. We know that river to be the mighty Colorado, the most dangerous river in the world. It is one of the longest and fastest in North America, also one of the most unpredictable. It is a wild river surging through canyons hundreds of miles long, traveling at a rate of two miles an hour to twenty miles and even more.

"It has more than one personality, and to look at the reddish muddy water flowing quietly over the sandbars at Yuma and to recall the roaring swirling rapids at Cataract Canyon which have smashed boats and men, it is to understand there here is schizophrenia. It is at once fascinating and dangerous, and there is no river like it in the world.

"The first white man to travel by boat on this river was Hernando de Alarcon, in 1540, but he saw only a small portion near the mouth. Just who was the first man to travel by boat in its upper tributaries is not possible to say. The first recorded journey was made by William Henry Ashley and party in 1825. Ashley was born in Virginia in 1778 and always had his eyes fixed on the west. At the age of twenty-four he went to the Missouri Territory, and when the territory became a state in 1820 he became its first governor. But still looking toward the west and hearing of the fortunes in fur trades, he went into business with Andrew Henry. While on the scene he decided to explore some of this unknown country. In Red Canyon where they were nearly wrecked by rapids so large they have been called waterfalls, the party halted by an over-hanging cliff. Here Ashley painted a record of the trip on a rock. It was a short, short story and no words wasted. He wrote only 'Ashley 1825' and the party went on. At a break in the canyon walls, known as Brown's Hole, the perilous journey ended.

"He returned to the river in 1825 and sold his share of the company to three young alert men, Jedediah Smith, William Sublette, and David Jackson for whom the Jackson Hole County of Wyoming is named. Ashley was cured of his western fever and in 1831 was elected to Congress and continued his career in Washington instead of the tributaries of the Colorado. "Others followed, some unknown, some forgotten until the formal exploration and scientific expedition of Major John Wesley Powell. Powell was born at Mount Morris, N. Y., in 1834. He attended Oberlin College and became interested in the study of conchology. Then came the Civil War. He volunteered and became a Major. At the battle of Shiloh in 1862 he lost his right arm. This tragedy would seem to seal the future of the young scientist, but Powell was made of stern stuff. Mustered out of service at twenty-eight he married his cousin, Emma Dean. They went to Colorado where Powell wanted to study the geological history of the West and at the head waters of the Colorado was fascinated by this stream.

"By 1869 the general course of the river was known, but there were huge gaps that white men had still not seen. This was just the thing to appeal to the scientist. He would traverse the river throughout its unknown portions and publish the facts. Toward this goal he gave the upper tributaries careful study. He secured the backing of the Chicago Academy of Science. Four boats were built under his supervision and ten men enlisted for the adventure. The Union Pacific Railroad interested in the project provided transportation for the boats and men to the starting point.

"May 24, 1869, the party organized: The small advance boat 'Emma Dean' held Powell, John C. Sumner, and William H. Dunn, a trapper. The second boat, Kitty Clyde's Sister' carried Walter H. Powell, a brother of the leader, and G. W. Bradley, a sergeant from the Union Army. The third boat called 'No-Name' carried O. G. Howland, and Seneca Howland his younger brother, and Frank Goodman, an Englishman, who had never been West before. The fourth boat, 'Maid of the Canyon', carried William R. Hawkins, the cook, and Andrew Hall, a Scotch lad of nineteen. There was little fanfare at the starting point of Green River, Wyoming, as the boats were cut loose.

"Their experiences followed the general events of those in Lodoe Canyon. They ever had to be on guard, but they went on, battling rapids and rising tempers. "By this time the Powell Expedition had lost all contacts with civilization. The event had attracted national interest and many stories were printed by newspapers. A check with Mrs. Powell revealed that the party was far below the place called Brown's Hole and all were well.

"In the heart of the Grand Canyon, in the Granite Gorge of Archaean Rock the party was busy fighting a river which was getting rough. Some of the rapids were impossible to run. Powell would not give up. He was determined to explore the river. They emerged from the west end of the two hundred and seventeen miles of Grand Canyon, into the safety of Grand Wash. Some days later they passed the confluence of the Virgin River, and on August 30, 1869, just ninety-nine days from the time they left Green River, Wyoming, arrived at the Mormon town of Callville.

"Powell was not through with the Colorado River and the Grand Canyon. In fact he devoted the rest of his life to the study of it. In May 1871 he made a second trip from Wyoming to the Grand Canyon. It was more leisurely and completed in 1872. His work attracted national fame. He was to the Colorado River what De Soto was to the Mississippi. Because of this vast experience in field work he was appointed as Director of the United States Geological Survey. In 1894, Powell became chief of the Bureau of Ethnology, an office which he held until death in 1902. Thus in spite of a physical handicap he pursued a brilliant career unparalleled in the history of the American West.

is the Powell monument. It commemorates in a few well chosen words, the first river expedition in 1869 and names the six men who completed the dangerous journey.

"In the second half of the nineteenth century, the transcontinental railroads were spanning the country. The Union Pacific and the Central Pacific met at Promontory Point, Utah, and the last spike of gold was driven in 1869. The Southern Pacific was completed at Yuma, Arizona, in 1877. The Atlantic and Pacific filled the gap between the upper Rio Grande Valley in New Mexico and Needles in California in 1833, a part of the great Santa Fe system. The year 1932 brought a conclusion he pioneering and explorative period of the Grand Canyon and Colorado River history. It wrote the last paragraph, punctuated it, and closed the book. Both river and the canyon had, as far as men were concerned, entered the second period which might be called the tourist era. Compare this with Powell, Brown-Stanton, and all the others. How times have changed! Nevertheless, the beast is still there. He will decide whether he is going to offer you bad rapids or not. Row your boat gently down the stream, and trust him at your peril."

The program was concluded with two piano selections by Mrs. Theodore Huston. She presented "Sunrise" and "On the Trail" from the "Grand Canyon Suite" by Ferde Grofe.

Mrs. Milton Patterson presided at the business meeting.

The dates of April 9, 10 and 11 were announced as convention days of the Ohio Federation of Women's Club. Delegates are Mrs. Barton Deming and Mrs. Bishop Given. Alternates are Mrs. James Reichelderfer and Mrs. Ralph Dunkle.

"May 24, 1869, the party organized. The small advance boat "Emma Dean" held Powell, John C. Sumner, and William H. Dunn, a trapper. The second boat, Kitty Clyde's Sister," carried Walter H. Powell, a brother of the leader, and G. W. Bradley, a sergeant from the Union Army. The third boat called "No-Name" carried O. G. Howland, and Seneca Howland his younger brother, and Frank Goodman, an Englishman, who had never been West before. The fourth boat, "Maid of the Canyon," carried William R. Hawkins, the cook, and Andrew Hall, a Scotch lad of nineteen. There was little fanfare at the starting point of Green River, Wyoming, as the boats were cut loose.

"Their experiences followed the general events of those in Lode Canyon. They ever had to be on guard, but they went on, battling rapids and rising terrors.

"By this time the Powell Expedition had lost all contacts with civilization. The event had attracted national interest and many stories were printed by newspapers. A check with Mrs. Powell revealed that the party was far below the place called Brown's Hole and all were well.

"In the heart of the Grand Canyon, in the Granite Gorge of Arch-ean Rock the party was busy fighting a river which was getting rough. Some of the rapids were impossible to run. Powell would not give up. He was determined to explore the river. They emerged from the west end of the two hundred and seventeen miles of Grand Canyon, into the safety of Grand Wash. Some days later they passed the confluence of the Virgin River, and on August 30, 1869, just ninety-nine days from the time they left Green River, Wyoming, arrived at the Mormon town of Callville.

"Powell was not through with the Colorado River and the Grand Canyon. In fact he devoted the rest of his life to the study of them. In May 1871 he made a second trip from Wyoming to the Grand Canyon. It was more leisurely and completed in 1872. His work attracted national fame. He was to the Colorado River what De Soto was to the Mississippi. Because of this vast experience in field work he was appointed as Director of the United States Geological Survey. In 1894, Powell became chief of the Bureau of Ethnology, an office which he held until death in 1902. Thus in spite of a physical handicap he pursued a brilliant career unparalleled in the history of the American West.

is the Powell monument. It commemorates in a few well chosen words, the first river expedition in 1869 and names the six men who completed the dangerous journey.

"In the second half of the nineteenth century, the transcontinental railroads were spanning the country. The Union Pacific and the Central Pacific met at Promontory Point, Utah, and the last spike of gold was driven in 1869. The Southern Pacific was completed at Yuma, Arizona, in 1877. The Atlantic and Pacific filled the gap between the upper Rio Grande Valley in New Mexico and Needles in California in 1833, a part of the great Santa Fe system. The year 1932 brought a conclusion he pioneering and explorative period of the Grand Canyon and Colorado River history. It wrote the last paragraph, punctuated it, and closed the book. Both river and the canyon had, as far as men were concerned, entered the second period which might be called the tourist era. Compare this with Powell, Brown-Stanton, and all the others. How times have changed! Nevertheless, the beast is still there. He will decide whether he is going to offer you bad rapids or not. Row your boat gently down the stream, and trust him at your peril."

The program was concluded with two piano selections by Mrs. Theodore Huston. She presented "Sunrise" and "On the Trail" from the "Grand Canyon Suite" by Ferde Grofe.

Mrs. Milton Patterson presided at the business meeting. The dates of April 9, 10 and 11 were announced as convention days of the Ohio Federation of Women's Club. Delegates are Mrs. Barton Deming and Mrs. Bishop Given. Alternates are Mrs. James Reichelderfer and Mrs. Ralph Dunkle.

Terrible Ted Still Sounding Off Bitterly

'Phony Politicians' Lambasted; Aid For Joe Louis Is Urged

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox followed up his blast at the Marine Corps, the late Sen. Robert A. Taft and "all those other phony politicians" today with a slap at the U.S. government for its treatment of Joe Louis, former heavyweight champion.

"Here's a guy who has been a credit to his race and his country and look at the treatment he's getting," he said. "I think it's a shame the way he's being hounded for the payment of his back income taxes.

"He'll never be able to pay all that money he owes the government. He's stuck for life. The interest keeps climbing every day and there isn't a damn thing he can do about it.

"Why doesn't the government make some sort of a settlement with him? Or better yet wipe out the entire debt. If some big-shot phony politician was in the same predicament, they'd allow him to settle it by paying two cents on the dollar."

Williams' criticism came less than 24 hours after he had been quoted by Crozet Duplantier, executive sports editor of the New Orleans States, as blasting the Marine Corps, the late Sen. Taft (R) of Ohio, former President Harry S. Truman and the entire U. S. government.

The controversial star reaffirmed he had told the New Orleans newsmen he had no use for the Marine Corps, and that he had referred to Sen. Taft as a "phony politician."

He denied criticizing Mr. Truman and the government.

"Sure I said I had no use for the Marine Corps," the 38-year-old former Marine captain said. "I felt that way when they called me back into the service for the second time in 1952 and that's the way I feel now. I resented the way they singled me out because I was in the public eye. I'd have had no squawk if they had called back every reserve officer in the same category.

"I'll tell you why they called a lot of us back. They wanted an appropriation of $450,000 from the government for airplanes and they needed pilots to fly them. So they recalled 1,100 pilots who hadn't flown planes for 11 years.

"As for Taft, I used to think he was a wonderful man. But I found out he was no different than the other phony politicians."

"A friend of mine, without my knowledge, went to see him about getting my release. Taft told him if it were anybody else he would help him, but he couldn't touch me. I was too big. I never asked for any special treatment, but that's a heck of a way to operate."

Algerian Wins Disputed Nod In Bantam Tilt

PARIS (AP)—Alphonse Halimi, a baby-faced little Algerian, was the new claimant to the world bantamweight boxing championship today. But he still has an argument and another fight on his hands before he can really call it all his own.

Halimi scored a decisive 15-round decision Monday night over Mario D'Agata, a deaf-mute from Italy, who had held the title since last June but was making his first defense.

The battle was interrupted 15 minutes at the end of the third round by a fire which broke out among the lighting installations hanging over the ring.

The fire provoked the argument about the title. Libero Cecchi, D'Agata's manager, claimed immediately after the fight that under the circumstances the referee should have halted it and called it "no contest."

Halimi's next fight involves Raul Macias of Mexico, recognized as the world bantamweight titleholder by the U. S. National Boxing Assn. The World Committee on Professional Boxing sanctioned Monday night's contest only on condition that the winner meet Macias before July 1.

D'Agata and Halimi put on a dull show. D'Agata, constantly the aggressor, pushed Halimi back against the ropes and the two men stood head to head, flailing away.

Giants Pilot Plenty Angered At 'Doom' Tag On His Team

Editor's Note: Here is another in a series of articles appraising the 1957 major league baseball teams.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Manager Bill Rigney has been registering a slow burn this spring over insinuations his New York Giants can't improve, or even hold, their sixth-place National League finish of 1956.

When Rigney who's starting his second season at New York's helm, saw a West Coast headline advising that "the Giants are doomed," he commented angrily: "That headline writer should drop dead, because we're going to make some people eat their words."

The bespectacled Rigney is convinced that the Giants will have more to offer than just heralded Willie Mays, 20 - game winner Johnny Antonelli, reliable Red Schoendienst and consistent Don Mueller.

"We got fine promise from rookie Andre Rodgers at shortstop, Gail Harris at first base, and Whitey Lockman, back from the Cardinals," continued Rigney. "Lockman could do the job for us at first base or left field."

Rodgers, 22-year-old ex-cricketer player from the Bahamas, was a standout of the Giants' Phoenix spring stand. He may be the starting shortstop, if for no other reason than he has amazed veteran observers with his fielding skill.

Harris has been a spring wonder for several years. If he can finally spear the first base job, Lockman and equally versatile Foster Castleman can concentrate elsewhere.

Castleman, a 226 hitter last year, came to life in the late stages of the exhibition season and could take over at third base where Ossie Virgil, a .265 performer for Minneapolis in 1956, has been trying to catch on.

The Giants have only one established catcher, Wes Westrum, who figured to be No. 2 receiver until Bill Sarni was stricken by a heart attack at the start of spring practice. The Giants are shopping for another catcher, with rookie Bob Schmidt the chief standby.

Hank Sauer, 38-year-old slugger obtained from the Cardinals, or Lockman, will be in left field with Mueller and Dusty Rhodes or Hank Thompson in right on the other side of superb center fielder Mays. Thompson also could wind up at his old third base spot.

Daryl Spencer, standing by at shortstop during the stirring trial of rangy Rodgers, is also capable of playing second or third, thus enhancing Rigney's respectable ability to deploy his men.

On his pitching staff, Rigney has a lot of names beyond southpaw Antonelli, who had a 20-13 record last year. Giant success well may rise or fall upon such potential starters as Al Worthington, Ruben Gomez, Dick Littlefield, Max Surkont, Joe Margoneri or Steve Ridzik.

Ned Garver Finally Shows Good Hurling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Maybe all Ned Garver needed was a pat on the back.

The sore-armed right - hander had been disappointing this spring to the Kansas City Athletics, who picked him up in that seven-player deal with the Detroit Tigers last December. In 10 exhibition innings, he had been tagged for 14 hits and 17 runs. He had walked eight.

Then Monday, Manager Lou Boudreau got around to naming a six-man starting-pitcher list, and Garver was on it. So what happens? The 31-year - old veteran worked the first six innings of a "double-header" with Pittsburgh (an 18-inning scoreless tie) and allowed three hits, one walk.

It was the only exhibition game played. All others were rained out. The A's also got their first good job from Maury McDermott, the ex-Yankee and also on Boudreau's starting six. The lefty followed Garver and gave just two hits, walked two and struck out six in his seven innings.

The A's got 11 hits — all singles, off Ron Kline, Bob Purkey and Vern Law in the longest game of the spring. The Pirates, sending Kline and Purkey on seven-inning stints, managed only seven hits, with Roberto Clemente's first-inning double, the game's only, extra-base hit.

German Collects Win Over Baker

NEW YORK (AP)—Willi Besmanoff, who came here from Germany five months ago without any fanfare, today appeared headed for a berth on the heavyweight division's elite top ten.

The 5-10½, 194½ pound Berliner gained tremendous stature Monday night by whacking out a close but unanimous 10-round decision over strapping Bob Baker of Pittsburgh in a telecast thriller at St. Nicholas Arena.

Big Bob is 6-2 and weighed 214½. More important to Besmanoff, 24, is that Baker, once the leading contender to Rocky Marciano, still is ranked fifth by the NBA and ninth by Ring Magazine.

Warren Spahn, the Milwaukee Braves' seasoned southpaw, was told to pitch as long as he wishes today in the exhibition game with Milwaukee's Atlanta farm club.

"Spahn will go all nine if he wants to Tuesday," manager Fred Hickey said Monday.

None of the Braves hurlers have gone more than seven innings in any one exhibition this spring, although Spahn and Bobby Buhl in their most recent starts could have done so with no trouble.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., (AP)—The Chicago Cubs open a 10-game, seven-city tour today by meeting the Baltimore Orioles and although October is a long way off, there is little hope they'll escape the National League cellar.

Except for some fine young pitchers, the Cubs are in a dither and only shortstop Ernie Banks is sure of starting at his regular position.

Bonus shortstop Jerry Kindall has failed to measure up in hitting thus ending talk of shifting Banks to first base, third base or the outfield.

No other position on the team is positive and the season opener is only two weeks off.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Mickey Mantle, sidelined for more than a week by a foot injury, and Billy Martin, nursing a bruised hand, were expected to return to the New York Yankee lineup this weekend.

Another seldom-seen Yankee of late, southpaw pitcher Whitey Ford, has been tabbed by manager Casey Stengel to pitch Thursday against Philadelphia. Ford hasn't pitched in an exhibition game since March 23.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Manager Birdie Tebbetts, of the pitching-poor Cincinnati Redlegs makes it plain he thinks southpaw Joe Nuxhall will win a flock of games this season.

"Never saw Big Joe look better than in the last two outings," Tebbetts said.

"Looks like he's headed for his best-ever season, in fact, I'll be disappointed if he doesn't win 20. He's a hungry 210 now, his best pitching weight, and I intend to see that he stays at that weight."

Track Opener For CHS Team Slated Today

Unless weather dictates otherwise, Circleville High School's track team will hold its first meet of the season today at Grandview. Scheduled as a triangular meet, cindermen from Linden McKinley will be the third competitor in the contest.

CHS Coach Tom Bennett pointed out that his squad has had only about three days outside practice due to bad weather, making it difficult to determine just how the squad is shaping up.

The Tigers will probably rely mostly on sophomores and juniors, Bennett added. At present the squad is composed of two freshmen, eight sophomores, six juniors and one senior.

A tentative schedule for the remainder of the Spring includes the following:

April 12—at Chillicothe;
April 17—at Greenfield;
April 25—at Wilmington;
April 30—at Lancaster;
May 2—at Washington C. H.;
May 8—at Greenfield (league);
May 10—at Franklin Heights;
May 14—Arlington Relays.

Lawsuit Against Moore Dismissed

CHICAGO (AP)—Three suits seeking $750,000 from Archie Moore, light heavyweight boxing champion, by a Shaker Heights, Ohio, divorcee, were dismissed Monday by Judge John P. Barnes.

He dismissed the suit on the grounds that his court lacked jurisdiction over the principals, Moore and the plaintiffs, Dollree Mapp, 28, and her daughter Barbara Bivins, 12. Moore lives in San Diego, Calif.

In the suits of $250,000 each, Miss Mapp, the divorced wife of Jimmy Bivins, former heavyweight boxer, claimed Moore broke a promise of marriage, beat her and assaulted her daughter.

Conservationist Hits Man's Traits

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A conservationist told the National Council of State Garden Clubs Monday that man's own seamer side is more of an obstacle to good conservation than problems posed by wildlife.

Fear, greed, ignorance, pressure, apathy—these were the hazards listed by John Baker, president of the Audubon Society.

Baker recommended a continued program of education to show people that conservation of resources is in their best interest.

Terrible Ted Still Sounding Off Bitterly

'Phony Politicians' Lambasted; Aid For Joe Louis Is Urged

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox followed up his blast at the Marine Corps, the late Sen. Robert A. Taft and "all those other phony politicians" today with a slap at the U.S. government for its treatment of Joe Louis, former heavyweight champion.

"Here's a guy who has been a credit to his race and his country and look at the treatment he's getting," he said. "I think it's a shame the way he's being hounded for the payment of his back income taxes."

"Why doesn't the government make some sort of a settlement with him? Or better yet wipe out the entire debt. If some big-shot phony politician was in the same predicament, they'd allow him to settle it by paying two cents on the dollar."

Williams' criticism came less than 24 hours after he had been quoted by Crozet Duplantier, executive sports editor of the New Orleans States, as blasting the Marine Corps, the late Sen. Taft (R) of Ohio, former President Harry S. Truman and the entire U. S. government.

The controversial star reaffirmed he had told the New Orleans newspaper he had no use for the Marine Corps, and that he had referred to Sen. Taft as a "phony politician."

He denied criticizing Mr. Truman and the government. "Sure I said I had no use for the Marine Corps," the 38-year-old former Marine captain said. "I felt that way when they called me back into the service for the second time in 1952 and that's the way I feel now. I resented the way they singled me out because I was in the public eye. I'd have had no squawk if they had called back every reserve officer in the same category."

"I'll tell you why they called a lot of us back. They wanted an appropriation of $450,000 from the government for airplanes and they needed pilots to fly them. So they recalled 1,100 pilots who hadn't flown planes for 11 years."

"As for Taft, I used to think he was a wonderful man. . . . But I found out he was no different than the other phony politicians."

"A friend of mine, without my knowledge, went to see him about getting my release. Taft told him if it were anybody else he would help him, but he couldn't touch me. I was too big. I never asked for any special treatment, but that's a heck of a way to operate."

"I'll tell you why they called a lot of us back. They wanted an appropriation of $450,000 from the government for airplanes and they needed pilots to fly them. So they recalled 1,100 pilots who hadn't flown planes for 11 years."

Algerian Wins Disputed Nod In Bantam Tilt

PARIS (AP)—Alphonse Halimi, a baby-faced little Algerian, was the new claimant to the world bantamweight boxing championship today. But he still has an argument and another fight on his hands before he can really call it all his own.

Halimi scored a decisive 15-round decision Monday night over Mario D'Agata, a deaf-mute from Italy, who had held the title since last June but was making his first defense.

The battle was interrupted 15 minutes at the end of the third round by a fire which broke out among the lighting installations hanging over the ring.

The fire provoked the argument about the title. Libero Cecchi, D'Agata's manager, claimed immediately after the fight that under the circumstances the referee should have halted it and called it "no contest."

Halimi's next fight involves Raul Macias of Mexico, recognized as the world bantamweight titleholder by the U. S. National Boxing Assn. The World Committee on Professional Boxing sanctioned Monday night's contest only on condition that the winner meet Macias before July 1.

D'Agata and Halimi put on a dull show, D'Agata, constantly the aggressor, pushed Halimi back and forth, the ropes and the two men stood head to head, flailing away.

Editor's Note: Here is another in a series of articles appraising the 1957 major league baseball teams.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Manager Bill Rigney has been registering a slow burn this spring over insinuations his New York Giants can't improve, or even hold, their sixth-place National League finish of 1956.

When Rigney who's starting his second season at New York's helm, saw a West Coast headline advising that "the Giants are doomed," he commented angrily: "That headline writer should drop dead, because we're going to make some people eat their words."

The bespectacled Rigney is convinced that the Giants will have more to offer than just heralded Willie Mays, 20 - game winner Johnny Antonelli, reliable Red Schoendienst and consistent Don Mueller.

"We got fine promise from rookie Andre Rodgers at shortstop, Gail Harris at first base, and Whitey Lockman, back from the Cardinals," continued Rigney. "Lockman could do the job for us at first base or left field."

Rodgers, 22-year-old ex-cricketer player from the Bahamas, was a standout of the Giants' Phoenix spring stand. He may be the starting shortstop, if for no other reason than he has amazed veteran observers with his fielding skill.

Harris has been a spring wonder for several years. If he can finally spear the first base job, Lockman and equally versatile Foster Castleman can concentrate elsewhere.

Castleman, a 226 hitter last year, came to life in the late stages of the exhibition season and could take over at third base where Ossie Virgil, a .265 performer for Minneapolis in 1956, has been trying to catch on.

The Giants have only one established catcher, Wes Westrum, who figured to be No. 2 receiver until Bill Sarni was stricken by a heart attack at the start of spring practice. The Giants are shopping for another catcher, with rookie Bob Schmidt the chief standby.

Hank Sauer, 38-year-old slugger obtained from the Cardinals, or Lockman, will be in left field with Mueller and Dusty Rhodes or Hank Thompson in right on the other side of superb center fielder Mays. Thompson also could wind up at his old third base spot.

Daryl Spencer, standing by at shortstop during the stirring trial of rancy Rodgers, is also capable of playing second or third, thus enhancing Rigney's respectable ability to deploy his men.

On his pitching staff, Rigney has a lot of names beyond southpaw Antonelli, who had a 20-13 record last year. Giant success well may rise or fall upon such potential starters as Al Worthington, Ruben Gomez, Dick Littlefield, Max Surkont, Joe Margoneri or Steve Ridzik.

Ned Garver Finally Shows Good Hurling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maybe all Ned Garver needed was a pat on the back. The sore-armed right-hander had been disappointing this spring to the Kansas City Athletics, who picked him up in that seven-player deal with the Detroit Tigers last December. In 10 exhibition innings, he had been tagged for 14 hits and 17 runs. He had walked eight.

Then Monday, Manager Lou Boudreau got around to naming a six-man starting-pitcher list, and Garver was on it. So what happens? The 31-year-old veteran worked the first six innings of a "double-header" with Pittsburgh (an 18-inning scoreless tie) and allowed three hits, one walk.

It was the only exhibition game played. All others were rained out. The A's also got their first good job from Maury McDermott, the ex-Yankee and also on Boudreau's starting six. The lefty followed Garver and gave just two hits, walked two and struck out six in his seven innings.

The A's got 11 hits—all singles, off Ron Kline, Bob Purkey and Vern Law in the longest game of the spring. The Pirates, sending Kline and Purkey on seven-inning stints, managed only seven hits, with Roberto Clemente's first-inning double, the game's only extra-base hit.

German Collects Win Over Baker

NEW YORK (AP)—Willi Besmanoff, who came here from Germany five months ago without any fanfare, today appeared headed for a berth on the heavyweight division's elite top ten.

The 5-10½, 194½ pound Berliner gained tremendous stature Monday night by whacking out a close but unanimous 10-round decision over strapping Bob Baker of Pittsburgh in a telecast thriller at St. Nicholas Arena.

Big Bob is 6-2 and weighed 214½. More important to Besmanoff, 24, is that Baker, once the leading contender to Rocky Marciano, still is ranked fifth by the NBA and ninth by Ring Magazine.

TWO of the most promising Indian rookies are sized up by the new Cleveland manager, Kerby Farrell (left), in the Tribe's Tucson, Ariz., spring training camp. TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS By The Associated Press

DOUGLAS, Ariz. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs open a 10-game, seven-city tour today by meeting the Baltimore Orioles and although October is a long way off, there is little hope they'll escape the National League cellar.

Except for some fine young pitchers, the Cubs are in a dither and only shortstop Ernie Banks is sure of starting at his regular position.

Bonus shortstop Jerry Kindall has failed to measure up in hitting thus ending talk of shifting Banks to first base, third base or the outfield.

No other position on the team is positive and the season opener is only two weeks off.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Warren Spahn, the Milwaukee Braves' seasoned southpaw, was told to pitch as long as he wishes today in the exhibition game with Milwaukee's Atlanta farm club.

"Spahn will go all nine if he wants to Tuesday," manager Fred Hagey said Monday.

None of the Braves hurlers have gone more than seven innings in any one exhibition this spring, although Spahn and Bobby Buhl in their most recent starts could have done so with no trouble.

Track Opener For CHS Team Slated Today

Unless weather dictates otherwise, Circleville High School's track team will hold its first meet of the season today at Grandview. Scheduled as a triangular meet, cindermen from Linden McKinley will be the third competitor in the contest.

CHS Coach Tom Bennett pointed out that his squad has had only about three days outside practice due to bad weather, making it difficult to determine just how the squad is shaping up.

The Tigers will probably rely mostly on sophomores and juniors, Bennett added. At present the squad is composed of two freshmen, eight sophomores, six juniors and one senior.

A tentative schedule for the remainder of the Spring includes the following:

April 12—at Chillicothe; April 17—at Greenfield; April 25—at Wilmington; April 30—at Lancaster; May 2—at Washington C. H.; May 8—at Greenfield (league); May 10—at Franklin Heights; May 14—Arlington Relays.

Lawsuit Against Moore Dismissed

CHICAGO (AP)—Three suits seeking $750,000 from Archie Moore, light heavyweight boxing champion, by a Shaker Heights, Ohio, divorcee, were dismissed Monday by Judge John P. Barnes.

He dismissed the suit on the grounds that his court lacked jurisdiction over the principals, Moore and the plaintiffs, Dollree Mapp, 28, and her daughter Barbara Bivins, 12. Moore lives in San Diego, Calif.

In the suits of $250,000 each, Miss Mapp, the divorced wife of Jimmy Bivins, former heavyweight boxer, claimed Moore broke a promise of marriage, beat her and assaulted her daughter.

Conservationist Hits Man's Traits

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A conservationist told the National Council of State Garden Clubs Monday that man's own seamer side is more of an obstacle to good conservation than problems posed by wildlife.

Fear, greed, ignorance, pressure, apathy—those were the hazards listed by John Baker, president of the Audubon Society.

Baker recommended a continuing program of education to show people that conservation of resources is in their best interest.

of the Golf Writers Assn. of America here Monday.

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Hybrid onions have put onion production back on a profitable basis, says E. L. Drollinger, Ohio State University extension horticulturist.

Hybrids are doing for onions what they have done for corn. While hybrid onions are relatively new, years of experimental work have gone into their development. The flower produced on a normal onion plant is perfect, Drollinger explains. That is, it contains both male and female parts, and in order to practice controlled pollination necessary for hybridization, the male portion of the flower must be removed. This is a highly difficult task, and until an all female plant was discovered in 1925 at the California Agricultural Experiment station at Davis, there appeared little hope of ever producing hybrid onion seed.

In 1944, after years of crossing and back crossing in order to obtain a female parent with desirable horticultural characteristics the first hybrid onion variety was released. Today there are over 24 commercial hybrid onion varieties for sale in this country, Drollinger says.

Granex, a mild hybrid adopted to the Southern U. S. is probably the most extensively grown hybrid onion. In Ohio, Elite, Epoch, Aristocrat, and Abundance are being grown to a considerable extent. The keeping quality has been one of the major problems with the hybrid onion varieties, but these varieties compare favorably with the old open pollinated varieties, according to the horticulturist.

The introduction of hybrid onion varieties has in some areas resulted in doubling the yield of No. 1 onions produced per acre. Uniformity in color and shape, and disease resistance are other factors which some of the hybrids boast. New varieties are being introduced at a rapid rate, Drollinger notes.

Spittlebugs are expected to be more abundant this year than they were in 1956, says D. Lyle Goleman, Ohio State University extension entomologist. According to a survey conducted by entomologists from the Ohio Extension Service, the population increased in every area of the state except in the southwest, where it remained the same.

The population will vary greatly from one field to another and it will be necessary for the farmer to check every field, Goleman notes. One or two spittle-masses per plant usually is enough to warrant treatment. Spraying should be done early when spittle-masses are small and first observed . . . (April 20 to May 10).

Heptachlor and methoxychlor have been approved for use on forage crops and are the recommended materials for spittlebug control, the entomologist says. Heptachlor (1½ pints of 25 percent emulsion per acre) or methoxychlor (2 quarts of 25 percent emulsion per acre) will give control of spittlebug nymphs if applied when the new growth is small. Either aerial or ground applications are satisfactory, according to Goleman.

Placement of fertilizer and forage seeds in separate "bands" within the seedbed may prove to be the farmer's trump card in establishing good pasture, say forage crop specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and extension agronomists of Ohio State University.

Results of experiments conducted since 1952 at the Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., indicate that the most effective method of forage-plant establishment was a combination of drilling fertilizer 1¼ inches deep and seed ¼ inch deep. Ohio tests support this finding and agronomists recommend the practice of band seeding in establishing pasture.

At the Beltsville center, several advantages of this concept were revealed in comparative tests between broadcast and band-seeded plots of spring-planted orchard grass with Sericea lespedeza and fall-planted tall fescue with Ladino clover.

Increased yields of up to 130 percent at low seeding and fertilization rates was the most spectacular selling point reported, but another recently discovered advantage may be of even more economic importance to the farmer. Latest experiments with Sericea lespedeza and orchard grass in band-seeded and broadcast plots show that band seeding will give good stands, even when planting is done considerably earlier or later than usually is recommended.

By comparison, broadcast plots seeded much earlier or later than usual had a low survival rate and gave poor yields.

In fall planting of a mixture of tall fescue and Ladino clover, better establishment was noted in 3 out of 4 years as a result of drilling fertilizer below drilled seed.

Thief Uses Expert To Open Store Safe

CINCINNATI (P)—Someone had some expert help in getting about $3,500 from a safe in a shoe store downtown. Representing himself to be the manager of the store, the man hired a safe expert to burn off the door so he could get to the money.

Wayne Betz, the real store manager, discovered the theft when he opened the safe Monday and he reported to police that a safecracker had stolen the money.

When the word got out, Joseph Schmidt, a locksmith, notified police he was the one who burned the safe door Saturday night and said he did it at the request of a man who said he was a manager.

Cleveland Safe Robbed Of Gold

CLEVELAND (P)—Safecrackers got gold valued at between $4,000 and $5,000 from a downtown Cleveland jewelry manufacturer, local police report.

Felix Masevice, owner of the F. A. Masevice Co., in the Arcade, said the thieves got 1½ pounds of processed gold in ring settings and three-fourths of a pound of unprocessed gold. They also took $90 in cash.

Gallipolis Starts Cleanup Moves

CINCINNATI (P)—An official of the Ohio River Water Sanitation Commission says the city of Gallipolis has agreed to help retard sewage flowing into the river. E.J. Cleary, executive secretary, said Monday night that Gallipolis has begun charging a sewer service fee that will pay for disposal facilities.

The commission last January agreed to seek action in court if Gallipolis failed to take steps toward elimination of pollution.

Broadway Expert Says Supply Really Short

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Note to stageluck girls: For almost the first time within memory Broadway reports a shortage of fresh young actresses.

"It's a funny thing," says Jane Deacy, actors' agent, "but it's almost impossible to find a pretty young ingenue around New York. I guess girls in the Broadway vicinity get too sophisticated too young, or else they just aren't flocking to the Great White Way from the hinterlands any more."

Jane, a smiling brunette with a businessman's husband and a 14-year-old son, currently spends most of her time casting the TV shows West Point and Men of Annapolis. Both have unusual problems.

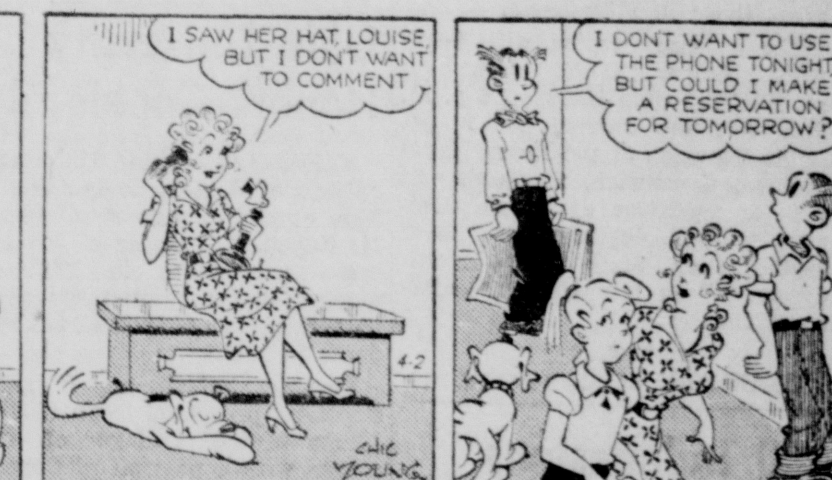

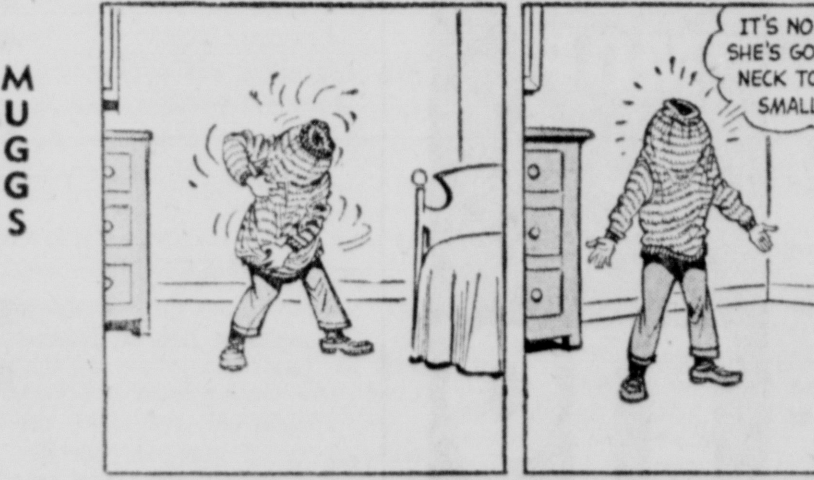

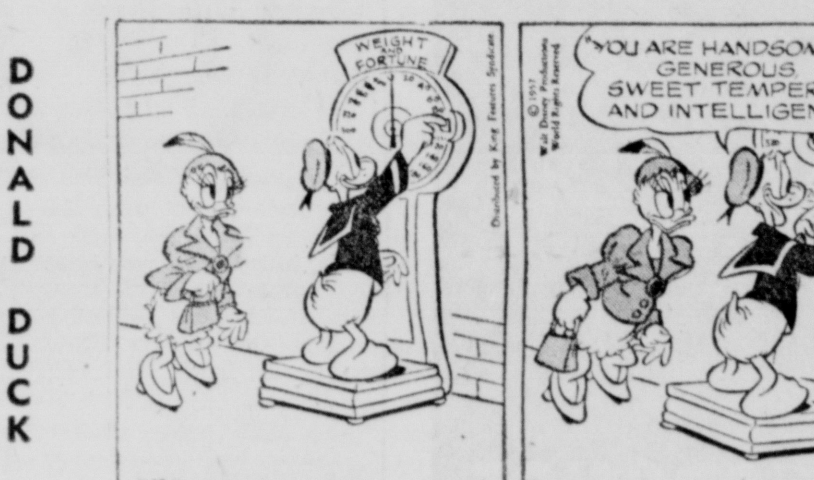

"The actors in the shows have to look like cadets," says Jane. "And the actresses have to look like the kind of girls a cadet would invite up to the academy for a weekend or a dance. We have no trouble getting extras for the 'drag' scenes—girls' colleges near both Annapolis and West Point take care of that. But to get an actress with enough experience to carry a main part, who looks young and unsophisticated enough for a cadet's girl friend, is a tough problem."

The shows are filmed about half-and-half in Hollywood and at the academies.

At either West Point or Annapolis, an actor must abide by cadet rules.

He cannot smoke except in restricted areas while in uniform and on campus. He must salute all officers—it's easier to do this than to explain he's not really a cadet.

FARM ROUNDUP

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Hybrid onions have put onion production back on a profitable basis, says E. L. Drollinger, Ohio State University extension horticulturist.

Hybrids are doing for onions what they have done for corn. While hybrid onions are relatively new, years of experimental work have gone into their development.

The flower prodig 1 on a normal onion plant is perfect, Drollinger explains. That is, it contains both male and female parts, and in order to practice controlled pollination necessary for hybridization, the male portion of the flower must be removed. 200 Indonesians Killed By Outlaws

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Trouble was reported today on both flanks of Indonesia, still in the throes of a Cabinet crisis set off by the resignation of Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo March 14.

The Indonesian news agency Antara said outlaw gangs have killed 200 persons in the last month near Makassar, capital of the Celebes and seat of one of the revolutionary regimes challenging the authority of the central government in Jakarta.

Farmers in that fertile eastern area have fled to army barracks for protection and, with nobody left to harvest the rice crop, a threat of famine has arisen.

Michigan Man Held For Shooting

TOLEDO (AP)—A 35-year-old Temperance, Mich., man, Harold Warley, was bound to the grand jury Monday for shooting with intent to wound his woman friend's estranged husband.

The victim, Donald Schutte, 33, of Maumee, was reported in good condition in Riverside Hospital with bullets in his left leg and hip.

Police said Schutte was shot by Warley while the Michigan man was calling on Schutte's estranged wife, Rosemary, 32.

He's Too Durn Fast On That Trigger

TOLEDO (AP)—It's probably a good thing that William Daniels didn't live in the Wild West era. Treated at Flower Hospital Sunday for a bullet wound in his right thigh, Daniels, 29, explained.

He was practicing a fast draw with his .22 caliber target pistol, but when he grabbed the weapon he accidentally hit the trigger.

Uncle Sam Acts Like Atlas: Carries World on Shoulder

Editor's Note: Following is the second in a series of five articles giving the background to the approaching debate on U. S. foreign aid policies.

By RELMAN MORIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Just 10 years ago this spring, America stepped into the shoes of Atlas, the strong man who holds the world on his shoulders.

The aim was to lift the non-Communist world out of reach of Russia.

Money and materials began flowing overseas in "grants," meaning gifts, and loans. Proposals of foreign aid said the great outlay was vital to the interests of the United States, not a "give-away."

A decade has passed since this began.

Today, the total American outlay depends on which set of books you examine. It is at least between 50 and 60 billion dollars.

And the end is not in sight. President Eisenhower has asked Congress for $4,400,000,000 to continue the foreign aid programs.

But today, for various reasons, many people are seriously questioning the foreign aid program. Congressmen are getting thousands of letters asking, in effect, "What did we get for all that money? When does this thing stop?"

By contrast, surveys taken recently by researchers at the University of Chicago showed a majority of people questioned approve the foreign aid programs, pretty much as they stand.

In any case, Congress is now casting up a balance sheet, reviewing the record, trying to evaluate the results of a spectacular 10 years.

In 1953, Soviet Russia, still scoffing at the U. S. program, suddenly steps out with one of its own. It offers both military and economic aid. The drive appears to be aimed primarily at India and the Middle East.

The Red effort is comparatively small — about 1½ billion toward the end of 1956, mainly in 30-year loans at 2½ per cent, with technicians known to be working in 14 countries. But it is gaining moment, analysts report.

Today, over half the U.S. outlay goes for "military aid." About a third is allocated to a hazy category called "defense support," which is both economic and military. The rest is given to "economic and technical" assistance.

Six nations — Korea, Formosa, Viet Nam, Pakistan, Turkey and Iran — are getting two thirds of the foreign aid funds. All but Formosa actually touch Communist territory.

That's the record. Was the money well spent?

Nobody will ever know whether Western Europe would have "gone Communist" but for American aid. Even though recovering more slowly, the people there might have chosen not to join the Reds. Who can say?

Whatever the answer, the record is clear. Western Europe today is in alliance against them. The NATO nations today pay 85 per cent of their defense costs. The United States and Canada supply the rest.

By no means every project has been successful. Critics charge waste and inefficiency in many places. Few people any longer think you can buy friends or allies. Did we get our money's worth?

All that exists is the record — and that can be interpreted according to different lights.

Ohio Gambling Spotlight On 3 Cities Now

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The spotlight of Ohio's gambling investigation turned today to Steubenville, New Boston in Scioto County and Geneva in Ashtabula County.

Gov. C. William O'Neill told newsmen he has had reports of commercialized gambling in all three towns.

The investigation's spread came close on the heels of state action to padlock four alleged gaming spots in Lucas County outside Toledo.

O'Neill told newsmen he has asked Liquor Director Robert Krupansky to investigate reports of gambling in Steubenville. He said he has no reports of gambling activity in Jefferson County outside the city.

The Steubenville investigation follows shortly the reported closing of plush Club 30 across the Ohio River in the Weirton, W. Va., area. Club 30 was reported dismantling its facilities.

O'Neill had no details available on the progress of the probe into alleged illegal gambling in the New Boston area.

The governor said he will step into the Geneva situation on the basis of newspaper reports that a large bingo game is in operation there. O'Neill said he will ask local officials — the mayor and chief of police — to look into the Geneva bingo operation.

Joint Employer Bargaining OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP)—Employers who bargain jointly with a union may act together in resisting a strike at the plant of one of the group, the Supreme Court decided 8-0 Monday in a case involving a New York Teamsters Union.

The court ruled on a contention by the National Labor Relations Board that employers in such multi-employer associations have the right to close their plants temporarily until the strike against the one company is settled.

Justice Brennan delivered the decision. He said there is no express provision in law either prohibiting or authorizing the lock-out involved in the case.

Why PROCESS 14-K ... saves ... the ... day!...

Let's be honest. Hudepohl isn't the only beer that tastes awfully good when you've finished a job or the job has kind of finished you.

But a Hudepohl drinker will tell you that for some reason or other, there's something just a little more refreshing about the cool, golden brew behind the Hudepohl label. Something a little extra friendly about the flavor. Something a little more all-around satisfying in the first (and in the last) good, generous swallow.

The "some reason or other," of course, includes a lot of things. But none quite so important as Hudepohl's special, costlier step in brewing that we call "Process 14-K."

So what's more natural, when you've popped the cap or pried open the can than to glance affectionately at that "14-K" emblem on the label and agree heartily that "14-K ... saves ... the ... day"?

Hudepohl's famous Process 14-K is your guarantee of beer at its golden best

200 Indonesians Killed By Outlaws

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Trouble was reported today on both flanks of Indonesia, still in the throes of a Cabinet crisis set off by the resignation of Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo March 14.

The Indonesian news agency Antara said outlaw gangs have killed 200 persons in the last month near Makassar, capital of the Celebes and seat of one of the revolutionary regimes challenging the authority of the central government in Jakarta.

Farmers in that fertile eastern area have fled to army barracks for protection and, with nobody left to harvest the rice crop, a threat of famine has arisen.

Michigan Man Held For Shooting

TOLEDO (AP)—A 35-year-old Temperance, Mich., man, Harold Warley, was bound to the grand jury Monday for shooting with intent to wound his woman friend's estranged husband.

The victim, Donald Schutte, 33, of Maumee, was reported in good condition in Riverside Hospital with bullets in his left leg and hip.

Police said Schutte was shot by Warley while the Michigan man was calling on Schutte's estranged wife, Rosemary, 32.
